'No Accident'—Collector

'Devil Face' Paper Money Re-Released

Ten million Canadian banknotes which show a "devil's face" in the Queen's hair have been released by the federal government—on the eve of Queen Elizabeth's visit to Canada.

Allan Klenman, past president of the Victoria Numismatic Society and a director of the Canadian Numismatic Association, said yesterday the first of the notes have already reached Victoria banks.

The notes were withdrawn from circulation in 1956 when the disfigurement was generally noticed. The bills were printed in 1954.

The design of the Queen's portrait includes what appears to be a satyr's head close to her left ear. The plates have since been altered.

Mr. Klenman said the Canadian Numismatic Association will protest the release of the notes. He suggested the design was "no accident."

"Engraving companies brought many engravings from Europe at the end of the war and who knows what thoughts they harbor."

He suggested those responsible might be trying to "put across the subtle message to the public."

Release of the bills will wipe out the value of existing bills, which have been sold for $1.50 each by dealers.

In 1921, bills issued in Germany included an unscheduled vampire bat in the design, sucking the lifeblood of the working classes.

Monty Making Headway

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery discussed world issues for more than two hours with Premier Nikita Khrushchev Wednesday and, at his own request, was granted another interview today.

Khrushchev's agreement to receive an official visitor for long talks the second consecutive day is virtually unprecedented.

He said his interview with Khrushchev, lasting two hours and 15 minutes, was conducted in an "excellent atmosphere, and the premier was in top spirits."

"The talks went well—excellent," he added.

Rainy Day Fund Down

Like Michigan and many other states Iowa has fiscal troubles. Its treasury is solvent. But a $100,000,000 "rainy day fund" that was built up during the Second World War is down to $20,000,000. Living, like many another state, beyond its income, it has had to dip into this reserve.

An Associated Press survey of state financial problems indicates 10 of them deeply in debt or in imminent danger of going into the red. And 16 have some measure of financial difficulties that could be more awkward.

Many got into trouble by spending more money than they received, making up the difference by dipping into surplus monies and by borrowing. Others are recession victims. Last year's business decline cut their income below their outlays.

Michigan, among the most troubled states, was brought to its current crisis by multiple factors. Generally, overspending and the recession, complicated by political bickering, has been held responsible.

For three years Michigan spent more than it took in. When a modest $25,000,000 surplus evaporated, deficit financing followed. The deficit could reach $110,000,000 by June 30, and the state also has nearly $213,000,000 in general obligation bonds outstanding.

The economic decline, which brought a high rate of unemployment to such major industrial centres as Detroit, cut into state revenue at a time when it was already insufficient.

The Republican-dominated legislature blames Williams for the fiscal impasse. "The governor always comes in with a budget increasing services everywhere," complains state Senator Charles Prescott. "If he's signed a tax bill, I don't recall it."

Deadlocked on Program

Williams and the legislature were deadlocked on a tax program. He wants a personal income tax and an income tax on business. The Republicans insist on an increase in the sales tax.

Meanwhile, the governor used money appropriated for colleges and universities to meet the state payroll, directing these institutions to borrow money. Then the banks cut off credit to the universities.

The governor next appealed to business and industry, which paid May and June taxes ahead of time but the situation still is critical.

Over-spending income while balancing the budget from reserve funds has created financial difficulties in California, New York, Washington, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Back in Michigan Williams has opposed any sales tax increase and has proposed instead a graduated personal income tax and a corporation profits tax to wipe out the deficit.

Payrolls Won't Be Met, Blind, Aged Come First

(From AP and UPI)

LANSING, Mich.—The State of Michigan, which has been on the verge of bankruptcy for months, yesterday had little doubt that "collapse day" had arrived.

And an Associated Press survey showed that nine other states are in almost the same boat.

A report showed Michigan will have only $22,500,000 to meet past due and accruing obligations, which will total $139,000,000 by May 15.

Governor G. Mennen Williams and his cabinet Wednesday ordered an immediate halt to all payments from the state's general fund, except for $3,500,000 to be distributed to counties for relief to the needy.

The order means that the state will not meet its payrolls until at least May 15. Approximately 28,000 state employees will not be paid as scheduled May 7.

$110,000,000 Deficit

Williams, a Democrat, and the Republican-controlled Senate are stalemated on how to meet an immediate shortage of cash and a growing deficit that may reach $110,000,000 by June 30.

Senate Republicans, who have a 22-12 edge, refused Tuesday night to cash securities in a $50,000,000 veterans' trust fund to ease an immediate cash crisis—unless they tack on to the bill a one-cent addition to the state's three-cent sales tax.

The state has been seeking means to revive from the cash crisis since early in the current legislative session, which began early in January.

Tuesday, when a plan to mortgage the state's $50,000,000 veterans' trust fund failed, legislators asked for an up-to-the-minute account of the funds available to the state to meet its many obligations. The $22,500,000 figure was their answer.

The state administrative board yesterday set up a priority list for state funds. Welfare payments came first, schools second and payrolls third.

The administrative board said public assistance to the blind, the crippled, the aged and the destitute would be maintained by state officials "as long as they humanly can."

School districts, which already borrowed nearly $70,000,000 against state aid payments, were given next priority as the board announced, "we will not abandon the school children of Michigan."

The situation was similar in other states. "I feel sorry for the next governor," said a veteran Iowa legislator as he considered his state's finances recently. "He'll be like Mother Hubbard when he takes a look in the cupboard, because it's really going to be bare."

Wettest April Ever

This is the wettest April in 70 years of recording at the Victoria weather office. So far this month, 3.04 inches of rain have drenched the area. The previous record was set in 1901 with 3.01 inches. Despite a fall of 1.72 inches in 30 hours up to 11 p.m. last night, police said they had received no reports of flooding of basements or streets.

Weatherman William Mackie forecasts some relief today, but skies will remain cloudy.

Labor Issues Mass Call For 'Pullback'

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain's entire labor movement Wednesday night joined in a call for military disengagement starting with a nuclear-free zone in central Europe.

The appeal was issued in the form of a May Day manifesto sponsored by the Labor party, the co-operative movement and the Trades Union Congress.

Military disengagement, it said, would "relieve the danger of a sudden and spontaneous conflict."

Appeal Case Of Sommers Nearing End

OTTAWA (UPI)—The Sommers-Gray Supreme Court of Canada appeal against bribery and conspiracy charges neared its end yesterday.

Lawyers argued over the Criminal Code definition of "official" to see if former B.C. lands and forests minister Robert Sommers had been charged under the proper section of the code.

'Terrifying' Need

U.S. to Strike First Blow?

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—A congressional study group said Wednesday it might be necessary to warn the Soviet Union that the U.S. reserved the right to strike the first blow if the Berlin situation called for action.

Of Carrier

Charles Takes Helm

He steered the 43,000-ton aircraft carrier HMS Eagle on a steady 155-degree course at a steady 25 knots—for one minute.

The prince and his mother, Queen Elizabeth, spent four hours touring the Eagle on a short cruise in and out of Weymouth harbor.

"Jolly good," said a naval officer of Charles' steering. "Have you steered the royal yacht?"

"Yes," said the prince.

"This is a terrifying contingency," the group said, "but conceding the first blow with the certain destruction of major cities is even more appalling. Russia served with notice that we will risk war if necessary is the greatest deterrent to war."

The statement said it was a reasonable assumption that the Berlin crisis would not develop into war, but the danger of war was present and any attempt to end the West's access to Berlin must be resisted.

It noted that a plan was in existence to break any barricade that might be erected at checkpoints if the Soviet Union turned over its control responsibilities to East German authorities.

"There is no doubt that if Russia reinforced that barricade we could be stopped," the congressmen said. "There is some thinking that at this point we must consider the next phase, which would be atomic attack. . . . We are prepared to risk total war when we break the barricade."

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

RAINY day diary: The little boys go scurrying up the path to wait for the school bus. They are odd little figures in their blue raincoats, moving at a hunched run, and vanishing around the corner of the sagging garage.

The garage is the cave where they take refuge. On a fine morning we can watch them. We and the boys wave idiotically to one another through the kitchen window. But on a rainy day, they stand out of our view.

The blunt blue nose of the bus from the Miriam Thomas School slides into sight. The doors open to take in two moppets, and then the bus moves away.

It was lucky that we put down crushed rock on that path. Otherwise, these rains would have sent the usual torrent coursing down the path and all over the verandah.

Now the path is so neat and free from mud that it seems unreal.

We have to postpone, one more time, the painting of the outside wooden steps. They have soaked up so much water that they may not be dry for weeks. On the waterfront, the two rowboats are lying upside down, awaiting repairs, as they have done for many weeks. By now, they must have made boat-shaped marks in the "lawn" of lush wild grass, which so badly needs cutting.

The rain-barrel at the southeast corner of the house is brimming over. It used to be a wine-barrel. At least, one brew was made in it, and then it was laid aside. A friend who was fixing the yard insisted on knocking the end out of it, and turning it into a rain barrel. After lodging a mild protest, I humored him. You can always get another wine barrel, but you can't always get a friend to help you fix the yard.

I siphon out some of the water from the barrel with an old piece of garden hose, so that water won't seep under the house. Then I set out some pots, pans and buckets under the drips on the other side of the house. Eventually the rain water will go on the three infant holly trees which I have lately planted, in a dry place at the top of the bank.

The dog, after several days' tearing around (it's mating season) has finally returned home wet and exhausted. We're buying some chicken wire to prevent him getting loose again. Somewhere he has lost his license tag.

"They've revoked your license to be a dog," I tell him, sternly. "That's to punish you for all your screaming around the neighborhood. You're no longer allowed to be a practicing dog."

The dog looks up and wags his tail feebly, as though he understood.

Driving into town, I see a bookcase full of books, standing in the rain outside a second-hand store. "Books 10 cents each. Help yourself," says a sign.

I hate to see books suffer. So I pull up the car, go inside the second-hand store. "Your books are getting wet," I complain, assuming the role of preventer of cruelty to books.

"They're not worth worrying about," says the store man. "I had a canvas around them, but it blew away, and it wasn't worth getting wet to put it back."

The bookcase is standing in an extensive lake of rainwater. Nearby are some chairs of the type used in beer parlors, and a bundle of lumber. Using the chairs as stepping stones, I make my way to the bookcase.

The books are a mixed lot: essays from Emerson, about a dozen volumes of Stoddard's lectures; various obscure novels; some nicely bound encyclopaedia volumes; a handbook on wiring and plumbing, in a handsome binding, badly soaked by rain.

Somebody prized these books and read them, at one time. Is it old-fashioned, to keep books in your house nowadays?

I pick out an undamaged Don Quixote, Volume One, and climb around the chairs to see what is on the other side of the bookcase.

It's an oddly surrealistic feeling, to be scrambling across barroom chairs in the rain, to get to inspect books that stand outdoors. As I make my way back to the store to pay my 10 cents, I feel as though I have wandered into a picture by Salvador Dali.

Floral Welcome Survives

Victoria Jaycees last night voted to pick up the floral welcome mat project at the Inner Harbor, shake it out and continue to welcome tourists with flowers.

Seven days ago the Junior Chamber let the project drop entirely, in what some members described as a "bluff that some other organization would continue it."

Now, the Jaycees have voted $600 for preparation and upkeep of the project — floral letters spelling out "Welcome To Victoria."

When the Jaycees decided to drop the project, Arnold Webb, deputy minister of public works, said the department could not continue the work and would have the letters re-seeded.

Development in Process

THE stock market has a saying "as steel goes, so goes the market," and it is one that is tried and trusted. Steel is a basic need of any community along with water, food and power.

For 60 years, B.C. has wanted a steel industry, but economics, uncertainty about ore reserves and potential markets were always deterrents.

It is thus highly satisfactory that when a start is to be made it should come from so large a company as Consolidated Mining and Smelting, which has the metallurgical know-how and the capital backing to ensure the venture will not fail on these grounds.

The new $20,000,000 plant to be built at Kimberley is to turn out initially 100,000 tons of steel a year, and it could be raised to an ore potential of 350,000 tons. Compared with the Stelco plant at Hamilton, Ont., where the output is now near 3,000,000 tons a year it is a small operation, but it is a welcome move for all that.

Just as the B.C. forest industry reached its full stature only when it started its own secondary industries in the processing of pulp, paper, plywood and fibreboards, so the mining industry will be strengthened as its raw ores are processed locally. It adds to the labor content of each ton of natural resource that the province expends. That way the development of B.C. undoubtedly lies.

It was unfortunate perhaps that Premier Bennett, indulging in political hyperbole, coupled the Kimberley venture with the improbable assertion that B.C. was on its way to surpass the industrial potential of Ontario and Quebec.

He should have been content with the facts as they are. Large steel plates, flats and construction girders will still have to be imported into the province, but locally we shall produce small-piece steel that will have the double effect of bolstering payrolls and utilizing ore tailings that for many years have been regarded as waste.

Obscene Magazines

BEFORE the current session of Parliament began there were statements from the government that clearer definitions of obscenity in terms of literature offered for sale would be drafted for inclusion in the Criminal Code. Since then nothing more has been heard about the matter, and with the session so far advanced there is some cause for doubt that anything will be accomplished this year to remove the vagueness from the present definitions.

It is encouraging to note in these circumstances that without waiting for further guidance from Parliament a magistrate in Toronto has adjudged certain magazines sold on newsstands there to be obscene and fined a vendor $100 for selling them. The amount of the fine, covering four charges, is of much less importance than the fact that convictions have been obtained. On the strength of them the chairman of the metropolitan police commission, himself a magistrate, has promised an intensive campaign to clean up Toronto's newsstands.

The prosecution by the Crown was in the nature of a test case initiated by a member of the Ontario legislature, who selected four magazines as the worst from the point of view of indecency of many he examined during a shopping tour for pornographic literature. In court the publications were described as "obscene for the sake of obscenity" and "an invitation to immorality."

One need not go beyond Victoria to find magazines which fit that description. There are on open display profusely illustrated "girlie" magazines which are shocking in their blatant emphasis on the kind of subject which the Toronto magistrate found to be objectionable from the moral aspect and obscene within the meaning of the Criminal Code. Any mature person examining some of these publications must concur in the opinion of the Toronto police commission chairman that there is no legitimate reason or purpose in the sale of that type of literature and the submission of Crown counsel that they are obscene for the sake of obscenity.

It is generally acknowledged that, while one may be able to determine in one's own mind what constitutes pornography in published pictures, statutory definition of obscenity is a more perplexing undertaking. Whatever new definitions may eventually be codified, interpretation will always rest with the magistrates and judges. The convictions obtained in Toronto may encourage hesitant authorities elsewhere to act without waiting for the Criminal Code to be clarified.

Widening the Field

A NEW phase in connection with a commercial sport is opened by a test case over Vancouver's Sunday professional games. The Supreme Court has ruled valid the provincial legislation permitting such sport in the mainland city. Supporters of the Lord's Day Act talk of seeking an amendment to this federal statute, but that would involve other provinces as well and is not likely to find favor at Ottawa.

For B.C. the Supreme Court decision will invite requests by other centres to stage commercial spectator sports on Sundays. Obviously it would be discrimination, for instance, if Vancouver were permitted a freedom denied to Victoria. This is the view that will be taken in all provincial centres where facilities for Sunday sport of this nature exists. The government will be under pressure to widen its legislation.

There are diverse views about Sunday sport, but the climate of modern opinion makes it hard to resist. From the basic point of observance of the Sabbath, also, there is no difference between amateur athletic activity on that day and professional activity. One would not like to see what is colloquially called a wide-open Sunday, with that Sabbath no different from any other day, but present legislation limits such games to the afternoon alone.

Another aspect of the matter is raised by Premier Bennett's remark that "We've got to do more for genuine amateur sport." What this may foreshadow, if anything, is problematical. While playing is better than watching, it is impossible for everyone to play, there will always be spectators as well as participants, in both amateur and commercial sport. It is highly desirable that more official encouragement be given to amateur sport development, but in relation to Sunday activity there is fundamentally no difference.

Interpreting the News

Mr. Herter Bows In

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH his own fellow-countrymen looking on, Christian A. Herter this week meets the first great test of his abilities as secretary of state—the American foreign minister.

Now firmly established in the job, he has arrived in Paris by air to try to coordinate with the foreign ministers of Great Britain and France Allied strategy for the forthcoming East-West talks on Berlin and the future of Germany.

His first task will be to help hammer out some acceptable degree of unity among the Western big three before they meet with the Eastern ministers in Geneva on May 11 in critical talks that may lead to a summer summit meeting.

The degree of success the West hopes to achieve at Geneva may well depend upon how well Mr. Herter and his British and French allies do their job at Paris.

In seeking a united front they will have to take into account the insistent views of the West German government, which stands fast on a firm policy of no concessions to Moscow in seeking a solution to the muddled problem of German reunification and European security.

While there is no clash in Western viewpoints, major differences of opinion do exist.

Britain, for example, apparently feels there is a real chance of reaching a practical agreement with the Soviet Union—if both sides are willing to make concessions. France and West Germany seem to be holding out for firmness and rigidity. The U.S. is reported to lean towards rigidity, though willing to attempt to reach some meeting of minds with the Russians.

It will be up to Herter, representing the senior partner in the Western alliance, to attempt to reconcile those differences and bring the Allies as close to a common front as possible.

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

NOWADAYS one may buy a four-in-one tool, or a seven-in-one, or at any rate an instrument that will do a dozen different jobs to perfection, or so the ads say, and such an asset is a boon to unhandy persons like yours truly. But undoubtedly the handiest tools of all are words. Specialization has introduced a baffling semantic coinage, as complex and long-winded as horticultural terms, but great play is still made of that old standby, a familiar word. What one can do with a word like "wrap," for instance, is nobody's and everybody's business. No four-in-one or seven-in-one tool can compete with it.

I have been intrigued of late, for instance, with the way radio announcers "wrap up" the news, as they say. I had always thought that to wrap anything or anybody was to envelop that body with a cover, like putting brown paper round a box of chocolates or a mink stole around milady. One can wrap the printed word around something else as may be done with this edition of the paper, although not I hope before it is well read, but how does one wrap up the spoken news. In this instance wrap means to wind up, to finish, to end, albeit where a Christmas present is concerned the wrapping, to the recipient, is only the beginning of things.

Perhaps wrap is becoming too embracing altogether. True enough a wrap if it is a cover embraces all that it covers, and if the hero wraps his arms around the heroine probably she thinks the wrapper cannot be too tight, assuming the heroine likes the hero, that is, but semantically the wrap is getting out of wrap a bit too loosely. Just yesterday I read in the paper that Mr. Herter, the new American secretary of state, had arrived in Paris to help "wrap up Western proposals." Supposedly these could be typewritten and stuck in an envelope, and thus wrapped, but I doubt this is the kind of wrap the writer of the despatch was thinking about. No, it would be to complete Western plans just as the radio newscaster completes his broadcast by, as he tells you, wrapping it up.

For a while everything was being finalized but now apparently the finalization is being swathed in a wrap, possibly to make it more secure, or, perhaps, obscure. Anything in a wrap is always mysterious until the wrap is undone. So it may be with Mr. Herter, who, not having revealed his ideas on this level yet, is himself wrapped in a certain amount of mystery. Long ago if not now, although diplomacy is so tortuous one never knows whether it is wrapped or unwrapped these days—even Mr. Khrushchev wraps and unwraps his presents with bewildering abandon—one might implicate or envelop a person in trouble or sorrow by wrapping him, and Mr. Herter might have something like this in mind. On the other hand he is reputedly rather a gentle soul, and a wrap being such a convenient element it can also be a soothing or tranquilizing influence. On this basis a tranquilizer pill is a wrap, and perhaps it is. I have never sampled one. Undoubtedly it has semantic virtue, however.

I begin to feel somewhat wrapped myself by this time and so probably I should follow my radio friend and "wrap it up" for this morning. That is to say, of course, that this is the end of this particular piece.

Reports from Ottawa

AN elderly man in a neatly pressed but somewhat threadbare suit pushed a $500 Government of Canada bond across the marble counter.

"Cash?" inquired the bank official. The man nodded. The banker made some quick calculations, then handed the customer a slip to take to the paying teller. The amount shown was about $470.

This incident was observed in Vancouver the other day. But it is being repeated throughout the nation as a result of the slump in the bond market, and what seems to be a lack of public confidence in the government's long-term bonds.

These skidding bonds are not, of course, the popular Canada Savings Bonds. The CSBs are guaranteed as to principal. The skidders are mainly the new conversion bonds floated last year with no guarantee that they would not sink below par.

The effect on ordinary people who put their savings into these bonds and who have to cash the bonds before maturity needs no elaboration.

The effect on the government is to make deficit financing more difficult and costly. The other day we had the most unusual situation in which a 3 per cent three-year conversion bond was yielding 4.98, while a 4½ per cent 25 year bond was yielding only 4.87.

Translated from the yield, this means that most people prefer lower interest short-term bonds to the higher interest long-term bonds. It means that Finance Minister Fleming will have to depend largely on short and medium term issues to raise the $850,000,000 he must borrow this year. It means that Fleming will have to pay the very high—for the government—rate of about 5 per cent on the money. It means perhaps an all-time high into the ratio between dollars borrowed and increased debt service charges.

Fleming's analysis of the slump is that what has occurred is "evidence of expansion pressure in the country." He says banks are liquidating their holdings of government bonds to get money to lend commercially, thus forcing down bond prices.

Assuming this is a full and correct analysis, what does it mean? For one thing, inflation. Strong competition for loans, exerting an upward pressure on interest rates and encouraging the expansion of the volume of money, means that not only Fleming but everyone else who borrows—commercial enterprises, provinces, municipalities and ordinary citizens—will have to pay more for borrowed money.

Fleming should do well with his 1959 issue of CSBs guaranteed at par. But for the rest of his borrowing he is going to have to make other issues much more attractive to the investors to overcome their disillusionment when the highly touted conversion bonds skidded to their present lows.

There's no doubt that institutional investors like banks and insurance companies will buy Fleming's new bonds and provide the treasury with the cash it needs. But these purchasers will turn around and lend more money to industry and the public against these government securities, so that the forces of inflation will get another big fillip.

To counteract this, Fleming logically should try to attract greater public participation in his issues. He likely will increase the interest on the 1959 CSBs. And he also may be toying with the idea of tax-free bonds as an inducement to the public to commit a larger portion of its purchasing power into his hands.

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

WHILE the beaver enjoys distinction on many Canadian symbols and insignia, it is the canoe that really ought to be commemorated far more gratefully than it is. There certainly would have been no beaver trade to inspire travel and exploration without the canoe. No other craft could have taken the place of the bark canoe in Canada's early history and expansion. Or even more than Canada's.

It was a Canadian born, Louis Jolliet, paddling the Jesuit priest Marquette in a bark canoe, who discovered the Mississippi, many hundreds of miles from his home base in Quebec and years before any other explorers followed.

Though the white birch is found in some variety in every province across Canada, it was only in a limited range that it grew to the size and vigor that supplied our Algonquin nomads with the material for their canoes which became the instruments of history when the white men arrived. All other tribes of Indian in America were pinned down by either having to walk or to employ crude and unwieldy dugout boats or pseudo-canoes made of elm bark or hides stretched on frames.

But our famed explorers found their repair material wherever they went along the way; and when they reached the prairies they carried rolls of birch bark for any emergencies involving their fragile but essential canoes.

Indeed, without the purely Canadian canoe, the history of the continent of America might have been quite different from what it is.

Napkin Strategy

A MAN is more apt to spill a drop of soup or soft-boiled egg on his tie or upper garments than on his knees. A napkin on the knees doesn't offer protection where it is most needed.

The best place for it is tucked in around the neck, or affixed to an upper part of the vest or shirt. That's where mothers place the baby's bib, and they are right. Adults are merely grown-up babies.

The Irish, a curious blend of logic and illogic, came up with an idea. One group of Irish hotels had napkins made with a button hole in one corner. It could be attached to a waist-coat button—the customer making the choice of what button.

Supersonic Airlines

From the British Aircraft Society

THE Supersonic Transport Aircraft Committee, which for the past two years has been considering the technical problems and operating economics of supersonic transports, has submitted its recommendations to the United Kingdom minister of supply.

It has suggested that detailed design work should begin on two aircraft—a 150-seater with a cruising speed of Mach. 2 (about 1,300 mph) for the North Atlantic routes; and a 100-seater with a cruising speed of Mach. 1.2 (about 800 mph) for stage lengths of up to 1,500 miles.

Should such aircraft be built at all? As P. G. Masefield, managing director of Bristol Aircraft, declared in a recent speech to the Southampton branch of the Institution of Production Engineers, this was the "basic issue": was the British aircraft industry to remain in the "big league" of military and civil aeronautics—which meant expenditure on ballistic missiles, anti-missile missiles, supersonic transports, vertical take-off and landing aircraft, nuclear-powered airplanes and a comprehensive research program?

If the U.K. is to continue as a leading nation in the field of advanced engineering, techniques and maintain prestige, then these aircraft and weapons must be designed and built. It would mean a vast outlay of money, a good deal of which would have to be provided by the government.

A great deal of research and development, of the sort brought to a standstill when the supersonic bomber project was cancelled two years ago, would have to be undertaken. Moreover, the fruits of such work would, as always, be of inestimable value to other engineering industries.

As Lord Halsbury, a director of the National Research and Development Corporation, wrote some two or three years ago: "Increasingly the aircraft industry first tackles then solves and finally dominates the solution of problems which no other branch of engineering would have an incentive to attempt. Its results react back on and influence general engineering industry so that by remaining in the forefront of aeronautical engineering we keep our position in the forefront of general engineering."

Against this, another school of thought maintains that the U.K. should concentrate resources on subsonic aircraft of various sizes for which a large market will continue to exist for many years ahead.

Assuming a decision in favor of developing the supersonic airliner, opinion in both the U.K. and the United States is sharply and fairly evenly divided on the merits of a Mach. 2 and Mach. 3 Atlantic transport.

Technically, the Mach. 2 aircraft is easier and cheaper. It could fly the Atlantic in about three hours, only one hour more than its Mach. 3 counterpart. Aluminum alloys could be used for the airframe since thermal heating would not raise surface temperature much above 100° centigrade. The Mach. 3 aircraft, with a rise of more than 300° centigrade to contend with, would have to be made of steel or titanium. Thermal stress, powerplant, take-off and landing, and economic operating problems make the faster aircraft a formidable proposition.

Moreover, the cost of each production Mach. 3 transport has been estimated at some $12,000,000, a good deal more than the Mach. 2 aircraft. This is partly because the world demand for these aircraft would be relatively small due to their large work capacity.

Nevertheless, it is argued that if a supersonic transport is to be built, why not go the whole hog, as it were, and aim at Mach. 3 or 3.5? Current developments, such as variable sweep wings, may resolve many thorny technical problems. Anyhow, argue Mach. 3 protagonists, government funds will have to back the construction of a supersonic transport of any speed range, so why risk building an aircraft that could be outmoded before it entered service?

The shorter-range Mach. 1.2 transport does not present such formidable technical problems. The crux of the matter is this: is the extra 190 mph (305 kmph) offered in excess of the 600 mph plus of the de Havilland 121, worth the considerable extra initial and operating costs?

Mr. Masefield criticized both the Mach. 1.2 and Mach. 2 suggestions. "Although the committee's recommendations would obviously make sense in a non-competitive world, they make commercial nonsense when we must expect the United States and perhaps Russia to be pressing forward with very much more advanced aircraft..."

These are but a few of the problems facing the government, designers and operators as commercial aviation goes supersonic.

"The door is always open"

Shelters or Chloroform?

In Sunday's Colonist I read where some organization wants more money for a cat shelter. Any cat that needs a shelter is a stray cat.

Now we all know cats are animals considerably lower than man. So I suggest that this organization turn over the $3,000 to the Jubilee Hospital building fund in return for a large bottle of chloroform to get rid of the stray cats.

Which is more important: stray cats or sick people? (Mrs.) EDWARD EAST

Compassionate Divorce

Doubtless there are many who would be willing to concede that, of all the problems on the doorstep of democracy today, perhaps that of divorce is most in need of compassion. Would it not be pertinent to ask whether, or not democratic ideals incline to an easement of the grounds on which divorce is granted? Too rigid a structure may be incompatible with the requirements and limitations of the human mind and spirit.

In marriage the principals themselves are the ones who agree to unite, whatever the authority before which they stand, and the sacredness or otherwise of the relationship is something which rests with them.

In divorce the principals themselves are the ones to appear mismatched. The urge to disunite may be mutual or prompted by either, and the sacredness or otherwise of the new relationship would be something that would rest with them also.

How can people who as husband and wife finally come to recognize they are not, in the nature of things, suited one to the other in marriage, be expected to love, honor and cherish each other until death do them part?

Once the spirit and substance go out of marriage, it fades away and gradually dies. Holy matrimony is a term which is in general applied at the time of marriage but incompatibility of temperament may change the association into anything but holy.

If it were submitted that the grounds for divorce should be enlarged, would the public mind bend to the realization that peace in the home can extend to peace in the nation and peace in the nation to peace in the world?

Civic Oasis

In reading various comments and suggestions about the use of the site of the old market building and fire hall I wish to offer the following as an outsider looking in, but one who considers Victoria my principal trading centre.

Why not convert this area into a green oasis in the midst of the business section? A place where people could rest while shopping, a place where mothers could leave children while attending to various duties in the surrounding stores. It would become an attractive meeting place for local people and tourists alike. It would be a much more worthwhile effort than stringing a banner across the Causeway, permanent and lasting.

Yes, after salvage, it would cost a little money, but not as much as the balloons; and the beauty of the plan is that you would have something for your money.

Runaway Inflation

Week by week, month by month, the nefarious racket of higher wages and higher prices goes on apace and our supine federal government does nothing concrete to check the present suicidal course.

It should be obvious to all that you cannot burn a candle at both ends forever—there must come a time when something will snap, and I submit it is high time we, as a people, let the government know wages and prices of commodities must be controlled and, if necessary, the necessities of life rationed to curb the greed of those who will not practise self-denial even when the good of their country calls for such action.

A very large section of the people are at their wits' end to make ends meet. The pensioners and fixed-income people's dollars are worth less (in purchasing power) than one-third compared with 20 years ago. Beef that cost 40 cents per pound shortly before the last war is selling today for about $1.20 per pound; the oft-despised shin of beef of 20 years ago, which sold for five cents per pound, is now retailed from 65 to 75 cents per pound; bread sold for five cents per loaf and is now sold for 16 to 20 cents per loaf; butter sold at three pounds for $1.08 and is now sold for about 70 cents per pound; vegetables and fruits were about a quarter of today's prices, and so on all down the list.

Flower Snatchers

We had a lovely clump of tulips, pink and yellow, outside our garage door. I am doing all the work in the garden myself and everybody enjoys our typical English bulb garden.

For weeks I have watched these tulips, as I know how much our friends and neighbors enjoy them.

Today they were all gone, picked before they were even open.

Rain Threatens Royal City Fete

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Persistent rain may force postponement of New Westminster's May Day celebrations this Friday for the first time in more than 25 years. Officials said an emergency meeting will decide whether to postpone the traditional dances and parades, a week if the rain doesn't stop.

Gift Camel Kept Out By Canada

MONTREAL (UPI)—Canada has followed the U.S. lead and refused asylum to a young camel bought in Israel for Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt's granddaughter.

The camel, named Duchess, was declared camel non grata by the United States shortly after the beast was purchased by Washington, D.C., attorney Abba Schwartz. Its entry was refused because of the fear of the spread of foot-and-mouth disease.

A Montreal radio station then offered to buy the camel and present it to the Grandby, Que., zoo, but the federal department of agriculture says Canada doesn't want it either.

Eight Strings

Tiny Mary Alston is only two, and while she can't play it yet, she does enjoy looking at and listening to this violin in Brodhead, Wis. Fashioned by hand by her grandfather, it's an unusual Norwegian Hardanger instrument with eight strings. Four strings beneath the finger-board vibrate with the bowed strings.

'Quiet or I'll Blast You' Bandits Raid B.C. Home

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Three armed men forced their way into a rooming-house here, tied up the four occupants and demanded money. They fled with only $10 after ransacking the home of Edward Gladstone.

Two elderly women and an elderly man were among those tied up at gunpoint and forced to lie on the floor of the rooming-house Tuesday night.

The bandits, armed with a rifle and a blackjack, wore silk-stocking masks over their faces.

Mr. Gladstone was away from home at the time.

front door at 11 p.m. A man, on the front porch asked for "Mr. Johnson."

Then two other men appeared, seized her and pushed her inside. One held his hand over her mouth.

Gerald Webster heard her scream and started down the stairs. He was met by a man with a rifle who told him: "Keep quiet or I'll blast you." Mrs. Gladstone said the men asked where her husband kept "the $1,500."

Mr. Gladstone said later he knew nothing of the money the men demanded.

CECIL NICHOLL

Air War Veteran Cecil Nicholl Dies

A veteran of air service in two world wars and recipient of the Order of the British Empire, Cecil Nicholl, 1993 Halsey Road, Victoria, died in Vancouver General Hospital yesterday a month after he suffered a heart attack.

Mr. Nicholl, who served with the Fort Garry Horse and Royal Flying Corps during the First World War, and won the OBE in the Second World War for "valuable public service" while serving the RAF Commonwealth Air Training Plan, maintained a chartered accountancy business in Vancouver at the time of his death.

He came to Victoria in 1944 and commuted from here to his Vancouver office.

Born in Belfast, Ireland, he came to Canada at an early age and following the First World War graduated from the University of Manitoba as a chartered accountant.

He was a founder of the Manitoba Flying Club and served as president of the Winnipeg Flying Club for several terms.

He is survived by his widow at home, four daughters, Mrs. William Christensen, White, Calif., Mrs. William Abbott, 3200 Richmond, Mrs. James Booth, Christie Way, Miss Cynthia Nicholl, at home; a son, Gerald, in Calgary; a brother, Ernest, Winnipeg; and two sisters, Violet in Winnipeg and Mrs. Sydney Lyons in Los Angeles.

Funeral services will be conducted from Chaplin's funeral home at 1.30 p.m. Saturday. Burial will be at Royal Oak.

B.C. Families Grow Bigger

OTTAWA (CP)—Number of families in Canada rose by 2.7 per cent last year to 3,953,000, though the average size of the family remained unchanged at 3.8 persons.

All regions showed increases in the total number of families, but only Quebec and B.C. showed gains in the average size, the bureau of statistics reports.

Lighthouses, moored vessels serving as lighthouses, were introduced in England in 1732.

Sister States Aid Panama

PANAMA (UPI)—A new invasion ship was reported en route to Panama last night as the Organization of American States took over tactical defense of the isthmus nation.

"We have it (the invasion ship) spotted and are watching it," a government source said.

The report coincided with information obtained from diplomatic sources in Havana that at least one shipload of reinforcements had sailed from the south coast of Cuba in the past two days to aid a small group of insurgents which landed in Panama last weekend.

Sources said the total invasion force did not exceed 500, most of them Cuban revolutionaries.

Panamanian officials said, meanwhile, that there had been no fighting around the invaders' beachhead at the Atlantic coast town of Nombre de Dios.

"Any activity there would be reported to the OAS investigating team," they added. "It's in their hands now."

The five-man OAS investigating commission from Washington is headed by Brazilian Ambassador Fernando Lobo and includes ambassadors from the U.S., Argentina, Costa Rica and Paraguay.

Philip Has Happy Day

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP)—Prince Philip ordered a two-day holiday for 7,000 happy school children Wednesday saying he knew it would make him unpopular with parents.

While taking part in a yacht race in Hamilton harbor, Philip had an amusing skirmish with a press boat which came too close to him.

"Why don't you get a bus," he called to the journalists in the boat.

Are Our School Children Getting Soft?

A little less mollycoddling and a lot more old-fashioned discipline is what Sam Levenson, himself a teacher and TV personality, advocates. He maintains that lack of discipline is responsible for our falling educational standards. Do you agree? Where Else Would Law Guard Mice?

PORTSMOUTH, England—Pet shop owner Mrs. Phyllis Cooper, 45, cuddled a five-foot-long python in her arms and let a mouse loose in the witness box as she won acquittal yesterday for "cruelly terrifying" the mouse with the snake.

She explained she put them in the same cage to prove her theory that wild animals in captivity adjust themselves to tame animals.

"These proceedings are quite unique," said prosecutor Gordon Jones of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. "In no other country could a mouse invoke the protection of the law."

King Fisherman Weigh-In Stations Run from Sooke to Kelsey Bay

It isn't going to be difficult for anglers to enter their fish in the fifth annual Daily Colonist King Fisherman Contest, which starts tomorrow on a five-and-a-half month run which ends Oct. 15.

More than 70 weighing-in stations have already been lined up and 20 or 30 more will be added as soon as their season opens to blanket Vancouver Island from Sooke to Kelsey Bay.

There is no entry fee of any sort in what has become the largest fishing competition on the continent. All that is necessary is for anglers to weigh in their fish at one of the official weigh-in stations and see that the entry form is properly filled out and signed. This gives them the chance to win trophies and crests and, if they are Colonist subscribers at the time their catch was made, one of the dozens of prizes making up a prize list in excess of $3,000.

NO BEARING
All but five of the many valuable merchandise prizes are hidden-weight prizes. This means that the size of the fish entered has no bearing on deciding the prize-winners. Every fish entered means an extra chance to win a prize. Salmon must weigh five pounds or more and trout and small-mouth black bass one pound or more to be eligible.

Main prize this year is an expensive paid trip for two to the Mexican resort centre of Acapulco via Canadian Pacific Airlines. This includes a two-week stay at a resort hotel and two or three trips on a specially chartered boat for deep-sea fishing.

There are many other valuable prizes in the final hidden-weight draw. They include a 12-foot Feather Craft aluminum carport boat, an English-made Seachief outboard motor being donated by Edward Lipsett Ltd., and two Goodyear Trailmaker snow tires donated by the O.K. Tire Store, Hillside and Fifth.

FOR LADIES, TOO
And there is also a special prize for ladies, donated by the T. Eaton Co. Ltd., of a fitted Elizabeth Arden cosmetic case. All entries made from the first day of the contest to the last will be in the main hidden-weight draw.

In addition, there will be monthly hidden-weight prizes of tackle and camping equipment and a monthly award for distaff anglers from the T. Eaton Co.

At stake also in the summer-long competition are the exclusive King Fisherman Trophies and the Prince Crests. A trophy will be awarded to the angler entering the largest fish in each of the contest's five divisions—tyee, spring and coho salmon, trout and small-mouth black bass. In every case where the trophy is won by a non-resident, another trophy will be given to the resident entering the largest fish.

Twenty-five crests are awarded each month for the largest 25 fish in each division. An angler may win only one crest each year in the same division, but there is a special prize of $25 in cash for the first angler to win five different crests in one year.

Then there are five valuable merchandise prizes for the Colonist subscriber entering the largest fish in each division:

Tyee salmon—A made-to-measure suit of clothes donated by George Straith Ltd. Spring salmon—A Youngtown food disposal unit donated by W. R. Menzies & Co. Ltd.

Coho salmon—A three-horsepower Viking outboard motor donated by the T. Eaton Co. Ltd.

Trout—A Jeubro tent and two sleeping bags donated by Jeune Bros. of Victoria Ltd.

Bass—$100 worth of Imperial Oil Products donated by the Imperial Oil Co. Ltd.

Low Burdette Hurls Fourth Straight Win

Low Burdette, usually a slow starter, became the major's winningest pitcher Wednesday as Milwaukee Braves spanked St. Louis.

Wally Post hit his second and third home runs of the season as Philadelphia dropped Los Angeles into second.

In other National League games, Pittsburgh used a home run by light-hitting Bill Mazeroski to edge San Francisco.

Giants 3-2 and Cincinnati 1-0.

Frank Robinson, Roy McMillan and Gus Bell hammered home runs for Cincinnati who held a 10-0 lead after two innings.

As a result, Cincinnati grabbed third place from San Francisco.

In the American League, New York Yankees finally reached the 500 mark with a 5-2 win over Chicago's flustered White Sox.

Bob Turley went the distance for the win and received home run support from Mickey Mantle, Hank Bauer and Moose Skowron, his fifth.

TIGERS WIN
And Detroit Tigers came out of their shell to trounce Baltimore 7-1 in a game that was halted by rain four times before it was washed out after five innings.

Frank Lary was the winner—the first Tiger pitcher to finish a game this season.

ALLAN CUP TO WHITBY As Vernon Folds, 9-3
TORONTO—Whitby's powerful Dunlops humiliated Vernon Canadians 9-3 here Wednesday night to win the Allan Cup for the second time in three seasons.

Wednesday's one-sided victory gave Whitby the best-of-seven series four games to one. Vernon had forced a fifth game Saturday with a 3-0 triumph, but were no match for Whitby last night.

Whitby's "production line" of Sid Smith, George Samolenko and Bob Atterley ran wild to account for seven of the club's nine goals.

This is the third straight year that a team from the eastern division of the Ontario Senior Association has won the Canadian championship. Belleville McFarlands won the Allan Cup last season.

Whitby—goal: Henderson; defence: Treen, Smith, McBeth, Ted O'Connor; forwards: Myers, Tom O'Connor, B. Smith, Hassard, Kane, Richter, Samolenko, Atterley, Bahama, Alf. Referee: Al Paradis.

Shamrocks' Kid Line Helps Trim Labatts

By JIM TAYLOR

There was plenty to laugh about in last night's Shrine lacrosse game, but Victoria Shamrocks' new "kid line" apparently wasn't in a kidding mood.

While Shamrocks and Nanaimo Labatts floundered on a slick and treacherous floor at Memorial Arena, young Tom Collett coolly fired three goals to pace the Irish to an 8-4 victory in the second annual benefit game.

This was supposed to be a preview of the opening game of the Inter-City Lacrosse League schedule, but any similarity between play last night and lacrosse as it is meant to be played was purely coincidental.

TOO MANY PEOPLE?
A thin coat of moisture covering the floor from end to end, took care of that. Apparently caused by excessive humidity and the warmth generated by some 3,000 fans, the dampness made good lacrosse an impossibility.

From the start play was, of necessity, slowed down to almost a walk. To try any shifting or fast breaks was to invite a tumble, and tumble both teams did. At one point in the second quarter there were four players sprawled on the floor, and not one of them had been touched.

Play was finally called at 10:47 of the second quarter to allow arena officials to go over the floor with sawdust. They did it twice, but there was little improvement until late in the game. The last part of the quarter, as well as the last half was played without any time stoppages, but the game still took 2½ hours.

SHAMROCKS SHINE
What lacrosse there was left the crowd favorably impressed with the 1959 Shamrocks, especially with the junior line of Collett, Jim McNeill and Jack Wilson.

Collett pulled the trigger.

Old 'Double X' Broke Again

Jimmy Foxx, member of baseball's Hall of Fame and a three-time winner of the American League's most valuable player award, is broke again.

It was almost a year ago that the famed "Double X" was discovered destitute after earning more than $250,000 during a long and colorful career.

Shortly afterwards, Foxx got a job coaching Boston Red Sox's Minneapolis farm club. When Boston decided to train at Scottsdale, Ariz., this season, Foxx headed for nearby Phoenix. One month ago he received his release.

"I'm broke again and I guess I always will be," said Foxx, second only to Babe Ruth in home runs.

ROBBY WOODS, a boxing stumblebum at 24, was given a 90-day jail sentence and placed on three years' probation. Woods, blinded in one eye and limping due to a brain injury received in his lightweight boxing career, tried to hold up a liquor store . . . Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens paid $13,000 each to Winnipeg Warriors of the Western Hockey League in settlement of the latter's $125,000 damage suit. Warriors sued on the grounds that the NHL clubs did not live up to working agreements . . . Calgary Stampede of the WIFU announced the signings of Canadians Lorne Reid and Bill Stevenson. Reid is a former member of the B.C. Lions.

LIGHTWEIGHT JOE BROWN has been matched for a title defence against third-ranked Paolo Rosi at Washington, June 3. Brown has already defended his title successfully six times . . . New York Yankees' Tony Kubek collapsed at breakfast Wednesday and was helped to his room. It was first believed the flu, which forced manager Paul Richards and six of his Chicago players out of action, was the cause. A Chicago doctor who examined Kubek discounted the flu theory and will make further examinations . . . Kimberley and Rossland, B.C., and Banff, Alta., are favored sites for the Canadian ski trials and training camp for the 1960 winter Olympics.

CHICAGO BLACK HAWKS have repurchased defenceman Ian Cushman from Montreal Canadiens, and in a separate deal purchased centre Billy Hay in a trade for a player or players to be selected at next year's training camp. Cushman was sold to Montreal at the start of last season for $15,000 and returned for the same price. Hay, 23, had 24 goals and 30 assists in 53 games this season with Calgary Stampede of the Western Hockey League . . . Defending champion Wiffie Smith set a new tournament record of 211 in retaining the Betsy Rawls-Peach Blossom Open Sunday at Spartanburg, S.C. . . . Matt Busby, manager of Manchester United, who vowed never to fly again, by Sunday made his first trip by air since the Munich crash shattered his team 14 months ago.

The United team flew to Holland for a friendly match. Manager Bud Poole announced Sunday in Los Angeles that his Edmonton Flyers would play three exhibition games with Detroit Red Wings in Los Angeles Coliseum next September. He also reported that Bill Nicholas, manager of the Coliseum, said that the city is not interested in entering the Western Hockey League unless Edmonton and Calgary are included.

There are many other valuable prizes in the final hidden-weight draw. They include a 12-foot Feather Craft aluminum carport boat, an English-made Seachief outboard motor being donated by Edward Lipsett Ltd., and two Goodyear Trailmaker snow tires donated by the O.K. Tire Store, Hillside and Fifth.

And there is also a special prize for ladies, donated by the T. Eaton Co. Ltd., of a fitted Elizabeth Arden cosmetic case. All entries made from the first day of the contest to the last will be in the main hidden-weight draw.

In addition, there will be monthly hidden-weight prizes of tackle and camping equipment and a monthly award for distaff anglers from the T. Eaton Co.

At stake also in the summer-long competition are the exclusive King Fisherman Trophies and the Prince Crests. A trophy will be awarded to the angler entering the largest fish in each of the contest's five divisions—tyee, spring and coho salmon, trout and small-mouth black bass. In every case where the trophy is won by a non-resident, another trophy will be given to the resident entering the largest fish.

Twenty-five crests are awarded each month for the largest 25 fish in each division. An angler may win only one crest each year in the same division, but there is a special prize of $25 in cash for the first angler to win five different crests in one year.

Then there are five valuable merchandise prizes for the Colonist subscriber entering the largest fish in each division:

Tyee salmon—A made-to-measure suit of clothes donated by George Straith Ltd. Spring salmon—A Youngtown food disposal unit donated by W. R. Menzies & Co. Ltd.

Baseball Season Nears

Young Stars Dot Lineups On All Teams

Emphasis will once again be with youth this season as the Victoria and District Senior Amateur Baseball League goes through final preparations for its doubleheader opening a week Saturday.

With the exception of a few minor changes, lineups have been all but finalized and practice games are now being played to settle any undecided positions.

Practice games this week will also serve as testing grounds for new umpires, who will display their talents under the watchful eye of umpire-in-chief Gordon Vosburg.

The league's four clubs—Pages, Eagles, Naval Vets and Wakeman-Trimble—will play all games at Royal Athletic Park. Present plans call for a 76-game schedule, with approximately one exhibition game a month against top-flight competition.

BEST YET

Enthusiastic league officials feel that the calibre of ball to be produced this summer will top anything seen here for several years.

Glancing at team rosters, one can easily see that this statement bears truth.

A quick rundown shows that all four clubs are laden with bright young performers just out of Babe Ruth and Colt League company. Many former professionals and semi-pros flavor the clubs with experience.

Pages can point to Bob Martin, Barry Williams, Des Moseley and Hal Jacobsen for youth. Catcher Bernie Anderson and pitcher Paul Beck provide the club's professional experience.

ADDED STRENGTH

If Berlyn Hodges, who has played pro ball for the past five years, is able to join the club, his name would be added to the latter list. One could also include manager Lowell Hodges in this group. Hodges is a former semi-pro player.

Eagles are no exception to the youth movement. In first baseman Darryl Lorrimer, outfielders Dave Reese and Cliff Kilduff and pitchers Robin Barnes and Steve Bishop, Eagles have some of the league's finest young material.

Manager Art Worth and second baseman Ken Murphy have both played semi-pro.

Aly's Horse Wins Guineas At Newmarket

NEWMARKET, England (AP)—Aly Khan's Taboun won the 151st running of the Two Thousand Guineas horse race today—first classic of the British flat season.

Masham was second and Carnoustie was third in the mile race over Newmarket's turf course.

Taboun, trained in France by Alec Head, won by three lengths. The three-year-old bay colt by Tabriz out of Queen of Basrah was 5-to-2 betting favorite.

Masham was 9 to 2 and Carnoustie was 11 to 2 in the field of 13.

Bowler and Brolly Brigade Flies to Support London

BLACKPOOL, England (AP)—A British bowler and "brolly" brigade left Brian London's home town Wednesday to cheer him on in his world heavyweight championship fight against Floyd Patterson at Indianapolis Friday night.

The party of 58, including London's wife and his mother, boarded a special charter flight to New York, and it looked like a Brigade of Guards reunion rather than a group of fight fans.

All the men wore black bowlers and all carried rolled umbrellas, known as "brollies" in England.

"It's just a little touch to give the Americans the right impression," said shoe salesman Manny Goodall, "When Brian wins that world title we are going to throw the bowlers and brollies into the ring."

HE'S CONFIDENT

Mrs. Veronica London, the fighter's 22-year-old wife, said: "Brian telephoned me last night. He is in the best of spirits and is confident he will put on a good show."

"I've never missed one of Brian's title fights," said Mrs. Agnes Harper, mother of the British heavyweight. "Nothing could have kept me at home this time."

The challenger was christened Brian Harper. He changed his name to London for boxing purposes.

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)—Champion Floyd Patterson and England's Brian London tapered off training Wednesday with gymnasium exercises for Friday's heavyweight title fight, but their activities were overshadowed by these other developments:

—Cus D'Amato, Patterson's manager, and Don Neseeth, pilot of welterweight champion Don Jordan, signed an agreement to pool their future managerial activities.

—Kirk Kerkorian, wealthy Los Angeles aviation executive, announced he would try to buy challenger London's contract if the ex-British Empire champion made a good showing against Patterson in their 15-rounder at the Fairgrounds Coliseum Friday night.

—Mel Ross, manager of the Coliseum, announced an advance sale of $90,000 and said it indicated a gross gate of more than $130,000 and a crowd of more than 9,000, with ticket prices ranging from $5 to $25.

D'Amato admitted signing the agreement with Neseeth, but declined to give details as to what it included. Friends believe the agreement was designed principally to restrict services of the heavyweight and welterweight champions and their stablemates to certain new independent promoters.

New Golf League Inter-Club Event

Something new for golf in Victoria was launched this week with the announcement by the Victoria District Golf Committee that an inter-club competition will begin May 25.

Gorge Vale, Royal Colwood, Uplands and Victoria Golf Clubs have entered. Each club will be represented by its six strongest available players, including professionals.

There will be three four-ball games each day and one point will be awarded the winner of each single match and one point for the winner of each of the three best-ball games.

Schedule calls for games every Monday evening until June 29, at which time each team will have played each other at home and away. The winning club at the end of the competition will have its name engraved on the 110-year-old historic driver presented to the Victoria district by Walter Gravlin, the Uplands professional.

The driver was the first golf club ever to be brought into Manitoba. It was made by Willie Park, the famous Scottish golfer who was the winner of golf's first open championship—that played at Prestwick in 1860.

It is hoped that the new competition will give the leading players of the district an opportunity of top-class practice under keen competitive conditions said Harry Young, chairman of the Victoria district committee.

Chairman of the Inter-Club League is Gordon Fellow, captain of the Uplands Club, and the secretary is Orville Fox of the Royal Canadian Navy Golf Association.

May 25—Gorge vs. Uplands, Colwood vs. Victoria.

June 1—Uplands vs. Colwood, Victoria vs. Gorge.

June 15—Colwood vs. Uplands, Gorge vs. Victoria.

June 22—Uplands vs. Gorge, Victoria vs. Colwood.

June 29—Colwood vs. Gorge, Uplands vs. Victoria.

Sturgeon Struggles Two Hours

BOISE, Idaho (AP)—Lumber worker Marion Woodyard, using a rod and reel, hauled in a nine-foot, seven-inch sturgeon Sunday and claimed it is the longest ever caught.

Woodyard, a Boise lumber yard driver, said the big fish flailed more than two hours before he landed it. He was fishing in the Snake River below Swan Falls, about 25 miles south of here.

He used a 72-pound line with smelt for bait.

Woodyard said his sturgeon weighed 320 pounds. That's 40 pounds less than the listed world record sturgeon, a 360-pounder caught in the Snake River just two years ago Friday by Willard Cravens. The Cravens' fish was four inches shorter, however.

Sturgeon is the biggest fresh water game fish for which rod and reel records are listed. Set lines or nets are used to catch sturgeon many hundreds of pounds heavier in the Pacific northwest.

Al Heist Finally Boots One

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—After 161 baseball games, Sacramento Solons centre fielder Al Heist finally booted one, his first error since Sept. 6, 1957.

In a Pacific Coast League game Monday night, a ball hit by Portland's Nino Torrey bounced from Heist's glove.

He handled 472 chances without an error. Both in games and chances he set PCL records for outfielders.

No Clear Favorite In Run for Roses

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Owners of 17 possible starters in the 85th running of the Kentucky Derby must kick in today with an entry box fee of $250, and there must be some signs of relief. The fabulous Calumet Farm is remaining in the barn. Someone else gets a clear crack at the big money. No derby in 50 years has perplexed the Blue Grass such as this $125,000-added glamor gallop which will be spread out Saturday before a Churchill Downs crowd of some 90,000 and a TV audience. Calumet's red and blue silks were carried into the winners' circle in 1957 by Iron Liege, and last May by Tim Tam. Trainer Jimmy Jones reluctantly withdrew his colt, On-and-On, from this year's classic for three-year-olds. "On-and-On hasn't developed into what I'd call a real derby contender," said Jones. "He had a workout this morning and I didn't like it at all."

There is no clearly defined favorite. Texans and Californians talked about Tomy Lee, Silver Spoon, Finnegan and Royal Orbit. The east and Florida waypoints wondered whether First Landing, Sword Dancer, Our Dad or Easy Spur might grab the roses.

Other observers were about ready to throw all the names in a hat and draw one.

First Landing, owned by Christopher T. Chenery, was the undisputed two-year-old champion in 1958 but hasn't been acting like the three-year-old king. Tomy Lee, a British-bred colt owned by Fred Turner of Midland, Tex., and raced mostly in California, won the Blue Grass Stakes last week at nearby Keeneland. In two meets last fall, First Landing barely edged Tomy Lee.

NO GREAT SHAKES
But First Landing was no great shakes in Florida. Lost the Wood Memorial at Jamaica recently and then won his division of the Derby Trial Stakes Tuesday.

Since Eddie Arcaro will pilot First Landing as he seeks his sixth derby victory, his mount may be a lukewarm favorite at 2-to-1 by post time. Willie Shoemaker rides Tomy Lee, about a 5-to-2 proposition.

Silver Spoon, C. V. Whitney's filly, winner of the Santa Anita Derby, will get support from sentimentalists.

Patrice Jacobs' Our Dad, a fast closing third in the Wood Memorial, is getting attention, as is Niel S. McCarthy's Finnegan, a winner of the California Derby and ridden by Johnny Longden. Mrs. Jacques Braunstein's Royal Orbit, second in the Santa Anita Derby, is also well liked.

Villa Topples To Division II

LONDON (Reuters)—Aston Villa, the club with one of the proudest records in English soccer, were relegated Wednesday night to the second division of the English league for only the second time in their long career in the soccer league.

A 1-1 tie against West Bromwich Albion at Birmingham was not enough to save Villa.

The other team threatened with relegation, Manchester City, won a home game 3-1 against Leicester City and finished its league program with 31 points—one more than Villa.

Villa, whose seven wins in the Football Association Cup is a record, was last relegated to the second division in 1936, but came back again in 1938.

Another relegation problem was solved in the second division.

'New Look' Softball League Opens Season on Sunday

Victoria's brand new senior softball setup opens on two fronts Sunday, with high hopes that the new interlocking schedule between last year's "A" and "B" leagues will revive lagging fan interest.

Doubleheaders in the Senior Open Softball League are scheduled at two parks, with last year's "A" teams sticking to Central Park and the former

"B" teams holding forth at Heywood Avenue. At 1:30 p.m. Gorge Hotel, last year's senior "A" champions, play Mayo Lumber of Duncan at Central Park. Second half of the twin bill is at 6 p.m., when Farmer Construction, formerly Arrow Furniture, meets Cec Fletchers, last year's "B" champions, now playing as Morrison Motors.

At Heywood Avenue it will be Navy against MacNutt's Grocery at 1:30 and Tudor House vs. Maycock Optical at 6. Other teams in the league are D & D Tire, Half Way House and Six Mile House. Games are scheduled Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, with interlocking "A" and "B" games on Sunday.

Western Oils

Stock Boom Short Lived

TORONTO (CP)—Western oils, Tuesday's stars, were Wednesday's big losers as the stock market lost in moderate trading.

Profit-taking moved in on western oils rights at the opening.

Royalite had the big loss in western oils, down 65 cents at $9.10. Calgary and Edmonton, Canadian Husky and Hudson's Bay each lost 1/2 while Pacific Petroleum and Pembina lost 1/4.

Grain Prices

WINNIPEG (CP)—Most prices were irregular in moderately active trading on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

There were no reports of export business.

Flax selling came from American houses. Oats and barley trade was on domestic lines. Rye prices moved narrowly in featureless trade.

Province Wins Iron Tax Appeal

VICTORIA (CP)—The British Columbia Court of Appeal in a unanimous decision Wednesday upheld the validity of the provincial government's controversial iron ore property tax law, which previously had been declared ultra vires of the legislature.

The tax was imposed in a 1957 statute passed by the legislature. Mining companies criticized it as aimed at discouraging export of B.C.'s 20,000,000 proven tons of iron ore to Japan.

U.S. Tariffs 'Harm' Canada

By HARRY YOUNG Colonist Business Editor

The U.S. head of Canada's largest mining and refining company told shareholders in Toronto yesterday that United States tariffs on refined nickel and copper were unnecessary.

Dr. John F. Thompson of New Canaan, Conn., chairman of International Nickel Co. of Canada, said the restrictive tariff of 1 1/2 cents a pound on Canadian-produced refined nickel, and the tariff of 1.7 cents a pound on refined copper were especially harmful to Canadian exports of these metals.

He said they were also harmful to U.S. consumers who were denied to that extent full access to a geographically natural source of supply.

International Nickel, which looks to better results in 1959 than in 1958, is disturbed by the growing move towards protection.

Dr. Thompson saw danger that the six countries of the European Economic Community might maintain a common tariff wall against manufactured products, with resulting deleterious effects on world trade.

Inco has no manufacturing facilities inside EEC, but many nickel consumers in the area have been Inco customers for about 60 years.

Dr. Thompson supported the efforts of the British government to establish a system of economic co-operation embracing 17 European nations, both inside and outside EEC, to expand and maintain free trade principles.

Behind the Iron Curtain, the trade mission will visit the breweries at Pilsen, the famous Skoda arms factory, the glass works at Mozer and the China museum at Pinkham.

WE HOPE HE'S RIGHT

In case readers should raise a querulous eyelid, I would like to assure them that the remarks attributed to me yesterday that the new iron and steel operation at Kimberley would eventually place B.C. ahead of Quebec and Ontario industrially were not mine at all.

They were part of a statement made by Premier Bennett.

THROUGH IRON CURTAIN

Czechoslovakia, France and Britain will be visited in a three-week trade and goodwill mission by members of the Vancouver Board of Trade.

The party, which leaves Vancouver Friday by Air, will include G. F. Dunn, former president of the B.C. Chamber of Commerce, who will represent the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

RAIL RESULTS IMPROVE

Canadian National Railways managed to get out of the red in March with a net operating income of $1,262,000, against a loss of $4,114,000 in March, 1958.

For the first three months, however, CNR still lost $4,485,000 on its operations, against a $15,435,000 loss in the corresponding period of 1958.

In the first quarter of 1959, the Canadian Pacific net profit it reported at $6,166,013, compared with $6,074,625 in the first three months of 1958.

Car Plunges into Creek

Father Holds Tots Safe from Water

HYNDMAN, Pa. (UPI) — Walter Bridges, trapped with his three children in an automobile when it plunged into the swift waters of Willis Creek, held his youngsters' heads above water for 45 minutes Wednesday while their mother swam to shore and ran half a mile for help.

All survived. The children, Walter, 4, and twins Sharon and Kenneth, 3, were in hospital with shock and exposure. The father, a furloughed railroad worker, was driving his family here when he lost control of his car at a sharp curve three miles south of Hyndman. The car plunged into the stream, swollen by three days of rain.

Death-Car Recovered, Two Missing

QUESNEL, B.C. (CP) — A car that carried three Quesnel residents to their deaths Sunday when it went off a ferry at the Cariboo community of Marguerite was lifted from the Fraser River yesterday. Only one body, that of 12-year-old Yvette Fenton, was found in the vehicle.

Still missing are the bodies of Mrs. Oscar Laycock, 48, and her 12-year-old daughter, Sharon Lorraine. Mr. Laycock smashed a window and escaped from the submerged car when the accident occurred.

Witnesses said they saw the car drive on to the small river ferry, shoot suddenly forward, smash through a guard rail and plunge into the water.

The Bird Man of Alcatraz

It is 25 years since Robert Stroud last spoke to a woman, 42 since he ate with another human. He has been in jail since 1909, in solitary since 1920. How does a man like this survive? How has he kept his sanity during a lifetime cut off from the world? Read the fascinating story of the man with the world's record prison term in this week's Star Weekly.

Also in this week's Star Weekly read "Are our school children getting soft?" in which a teacher examines the effects of modern education; and "Do nice girls make good wives?" — a study of why seemingly happy marriages break up.

Easier Than Pushing

Seems like spring fever has reached everyone within sight at a playground in Washington, D.C., where children are too lethargic to enjoy those swings by sitting in them. At the moment, they're satisfied to lie on their backs, stretch out and watch the swings go back and forth, with just an occasional push.

Distillery Under Bench Navy Workman Charged

PORTLAND, Maine (UPI) — A Portsmouth navy yard worker accused of operating a still under his workbench with government electricity went on trial yesterday.

James MacKenzie, 47, is charged with possessing an unregistered still, operating a distiller with intent to defraud the government of taxes, and illegal possession of a still. He pleaded innocent.

The government claims the defendant heated the still on a hot plate beneath his workbench at the navy yard. Federal agents said MacKenzie could make only a quart of liquor at a time.

Seattle Probe Ends

Open Pipe Suspect In Yacht Tragedy

SEATTLE (AP) — A Coast Guard inquiry into a Puget Sound boating disaster ended Wednesday, after more testimony pointed toward an open pipe coupling as the cause.

Two witnesses described the 43-foot pleasure cruiser Lois Ann as a sturdy, safe boat, despite its capsizing Sunday in Puget Sound with the loss of seven Seattle people. Five others were saved.

Robert C. Whale, harborman for the Seattle Harbor

Patrol, said: "I think it was a very seaworthy boat and the sinking was just one of those things that happen."

Capt. Francis W. Buckler, Tacoma industrial marine surveyor who twice inspected the home-built cruiser, said he found the craft stable and well-built.

"I'm inclined to agree with the Seattle Harbor Patrol that the uncoupled union allowed raw seawater to flow into the vessel," he said.

Buckler said the Lois Ann's bilge-pumping equipment was adequate, and water seeping through the open connection in the engine water cooling system below deck undoubtedly weighted the stern so seas flowed in through the bailing scuppers.

SETTLED AT STERN

He said this combination caused the cruiser to settle at the stern and finally heel over.

Records of the inquiry will be sent to the Coast Guard commandant in Washington, D.C., where a final report will be issued.

Funeral services for six of the victims will be held Saturday in Tacoma, the home of all those aboard the cruiser. The body of 82-year-old Martin Tayet, eldest of the family group, has not been recovered.

Best Speech Wins Trip

A trip to the United Nations will be the prize at a public speaking contest at 8 p.m. Monday in the Odd Fellows' Hall on Douglas Street.

Six Grade 11 students from local schools will give speeches on the topic "How is Canada Contributing to the United Nations?" to enable judges to pick a Victoria delegate to the annual UN pilgrimage for youth, a project sponsored by the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs of North America.

The Victoria winner will travel by bus to New York, where he and other winners from all over North America will visit the UN.

Dad's Night Club Discovery

Lydia Found Out

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — L. D. Webster of Dallas found his missing 16-year-old stepdaughter by accident yesterday—dancing in a chorus line at a French quarter night club.

"My first impulse was to wreck the joint," said Webster, a public relations man for a steel company. But he thought it over and summoned the police who raided the place.

After the initial shock and a reunion in which "we talked things over," Webster said, his pretty youngster, Lydia Hayes, agreed to enter a convent.

In town for a convention, Webster said he and some companions went to the club because it "wasn't the typical strip joint." He immediately spotted his stepdaughter in skimpy costume prancing in the middle of a six-girl chorus line.

"I stepped outside to think what to do," he said.

Police ordered club owner Saul Owens to get Lydia out of the chorus line. Owens protested that the girls were doing a number, but stopped the show when told Lydia was only 16.

Lydia, who disappeared April 2, at first denied her identity. She told officers she was "Toni La Marr," but soon gave in.

Webster said Lydia had run away from home because of "trouble with her school work."

Damages Ship

Skipper Raps Seaway

ABOARD THE SANTA REGINA, Lake Erie (AP) —The captain of the first American ship to pass through the St. Lawrence Seaway expressed some reservations yesterday.

Seaway 'Revolted'

MARIEVILLE, Que. (CP) —The new St. Lawrence seaway is a "monstrosity... a Dantesque ignominy, infernal, revolting and, alas, irreparable."

Architect Paul Trepanier, president of the Granby, Que., Chamber of Commerce, says seaway engineers had built a "gigantic steel toy" from which art and aesthetics are totally missing.

Seven Infants Die Early, Father Held

GOETTINGEN, Germany (AP) —Hospital employee Otto Lehmann, 46, is being held in connection with the death of seven of his children, all within a few days of birth between 1949 and 1957.

Capt. Hawley MacDermid of the Grace Line freighter Santa Regina said that unless the seaway changes its methods of operation, ocean class ships will have to be redesigned to avoid damaging their hulls and superstructures in the narrow canals and locks.

CLEAR OF WALLS

"In the Panama Canal," MacDermid said, "ships are held away from the walls, but here the system seems to be to hold ships in close to one wall, and that's where the damage results."

This 15,000-ton vessel has now passed through all seven of the new seaway locks and the 27-mile Welland Canal between Lake Ontario and Lake Erie, and is somewhat the worse for wear.

DENTED PLATES

She dented two hull plates, scraped her sides and lost part of her deck railing in negotiating the narrow canals and cement-walled locks.

At Massena, N.Y., Lewis A. Castle, administrator of the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, replied: "There has been no scraping of paint to, amount to, anything to my knowledge."

Is Someone in Nelson About to Break Glass?

NELSON, B.C. (CP) —There's an old saying that everything happens three times. So far it's happened twice here.

Two weeks ago, a woman visiting Kootenay Lake General Hospital mistook a glass panel for an open door and was treated for a minor chin injury. Yesterday, another visitor—a man this time—plunged through the glass panel while hurrying to board a bus. He wasn't scratched.

Radiation Poison Rising

HARROGATE, England (AP) — A Harvard professor says radiation poisoning of the earth's atmosphere is increasing. He deplored the lack of vital information handed on by the nuclear industry to health authorities.

Prof. Gordon Fair told the 40-nation congress of the Royal Society for Health that only now are public health agencies being taken into the confidence of nuclear authorities after near-disasters in atomic energy installations had driven home a lesson.

He cited figures which he said showed fallout from atomic weapon tests before 1957 accounted "for the birth of 2,500 to 13,000 genetically defective children in the world and from 25,000 to 100,000 cases of leukemia and bone tumor considered together."

Today's System Of Aid to Needy Makes 'No Sense'

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — There is no sense in today's pattern of granting aid to the needy, says Prof. W. G. Dixon, director of the University of British Columbia's school of social work.

"We treat people on the basis of their circumstances rather than the cause of their circumstances," he told nursing school graduates Tuesday night.

Prof. Dixon criticized the disparity between old-age assistance and social assistance.

"If a man and his wife are both 65 and are without resources, they are entitled to $150 a month in B.C. If both are 62 and without resources, they are entitled to $86.50 a month."

Prof. Dixon also said that another major problem is the multiplicity of social services, which he called "unplanned and unco-ordinated."

Woman Driver Jailed For Wild Captive Ride

SEATTLE (AP) — A middle-aged lonely hearts club operator, who raced at 70 miles an hour through downtown streets with a policeman pinned to her car, was sent to jail Wednesday for four months.

Judge Malcolm Douglas deferred a further sentence to Mrs. Grace Shippey, 48, of five years providing she serves the four months, then keeps her hands off a car until 1964.

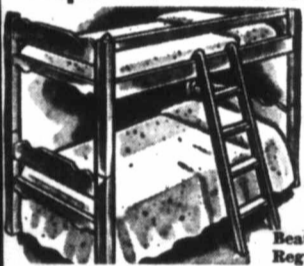

Mrs. Shippey was convicted last month of second-degree assault. She is being sued for $15,000 by Patrolman Harold Countryman, 24, for injuries suffered in the wild drive.

Countryman stopped Mrs. Shippey's car for a traffic violation last Oct. 28. His arm was caught when the woman

Just Before Fiance's Fatal Crash 'I Remember Him Fighting Wheel'

A Victoria man died early last Saturday while "fighting the wheel" of his car as it skidded off West Saanich Road at an estimated 80 miles per hour, a coroner's jury was told yesterday.

Death of Wallace Irving McFadyen, 25, of 1010 Queens, was ruled accidental by the jury, acting under deputy coroner Dr. J. H. Moore.

GRAPHIC PICTURE

Graphic picture of the force of impact and indicated speed was provided by Saanich Const. William Stevenson.

Skid marks extended 245 feet from the point where the car, a 1952 model, left the paved surface on a long curve, the officer said. "They were made by a turning skid; there was no sign of braking."

AROUND TREE

When police arrived at the scene, by Durrance Road, they found the car upside down and wrapped around a tree 27 feet off the road. McFadyen and a passenger, his fiancée Faye Robinson, 19, were pinned to the roof of the car by the seats.

Using jacks from passing cars, and a long pole, police were able to release Miss Robinson and send her to hospital. Dr. E. L. McNiven, arriving at the scene at about 12:15 a.m., pronounced McFadyen dead in the wreckage of his car.

STRUCK STUMP

In the course of its skid from the road, Const. Stevenson said, the car struck a foot-high stump 21 feet off the road and about 20 feet from the tree which stopped the car.

"There were no marks between stump and tree," he said, "indicating the car was completely in the air between the two."

DOOR THROWN

The officer based his estimate of high speed on the fact that one car door was thrown 40 feet from the vehicle into a field, and that top branches from the tree the car hit were snapped off and also thrown 30 to 40 feet.

Miss Robinson, dressed in black, sobbed at intervals while telling her story, saying she couldn't remember much of what happened.

The two had gone to the outdoor theatre, but having seen the film decided to go for a drive.

"I just remember going around the curve," she said.

"I remember him fighting the wheel . . . and the back wheel going down . . ."

Miss Robinson said McFadyen had just had the wheels fixed, but wasn't sure what had been the matter. She didn't think they were going too fast, and answered "yes" when a juror asked if, in her own mind, she felt it was the fault of the wheel that McFadyen lost control of the car.

Your Health

Child's Safety Rules

This is another article of public interest prepared for The Daily Colonist by the Victoria-Esquimalt Health Department.

Every day, some child suffers from a crippling accident; every week, some child dies of an accident.

Perhaps the most easily prevented accidents are those around the home. About one accident in three occurs in the home, most frequently involving children.

FALLS WORST

About half of all home accident deaths are from falls; burns and explosions are second, with poisoning, mechanical suffocation, and firearms following in order. These outrank all other causes of death among pre-school children and it is this group to which special attention should be paid during balmy, spring days.

IMPORTANT RULES

Here are a few important safety rules for parents:

Don't let children play unsupervised on the streets until they have learned to keep off the road.

In the yard, be sure that hoes, rakes, and other sharp gardening tools are well away from children's games, and don't let children play near the incinerator.

VERY DANGEROUS

Don't allow children to play on driveways or in garages, and make sure they realize that jaywalking, playing in the street and crossing behind parked cars are very dangerous.

Bicycle safety should be taught when the bicycle is given to the child, and children with tricycles, and wagons, should never be allowed on the road.

GAME CAN KILL

"Cops and robbers" is a favorite game; well-locked storage spaces for firearms are necessary.

Cuts, sprains and similar injuries should all be treated as serious, and every parent should have a good idea of simple first aid procedures.

Motor Firm Ordered To Pay Rebate Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada has ruled that Oxford Motors Ltd. of Vancouver is required to pay income tax on rebates it received in 1952 from Nuffield Exports Ltd. of England.

Bill for Litter-Droppers—$4,775

Vandals Cost You $4,300

Vandals, thieves and litter-droppers in city parks cost the taxpayers of Victoria nearly $10,000 last year.

That estimate was given to aldermen yesterday by parks administrator W. H. Warren. Parks committee had asked him how much vandalism and untidiness cost.

Mr. Warren's estimate included $2,500 for vandalism and $2,500 for cleaning up litter in Beacon Hill Park, $1,000 for vandalism and $1,400 for litter in small parks, $200 for vandalism and $650 for litter in Royal Athletic and Macdonald Parks, $500 for vandalism and $100 for litter on the boulevards, and $100 for vandalism and $125 for litter at Ross Bay Cemetery.

On top of that, he said, "out-right thefts" accounted for about $400.

The $9,475 total is equal to nearly 17 cents for each man, woman and child in the city. It represents a small part of Victoria's park budget, but on the other hand, it stands up large beside the 38 cents a person which Saanich municipality spent last year as its total parks allocation.

Gibbs

'Giant Killer' Backed

Oak Bay Liberal MLA Archie Gibbs, nick-named the "giant killer" by Liberals, may be a contender for the provincial Liberal leadership, which is being vacated by Art Laing.

"I will have to give it some serious thought," he said yesterday after Victoria Liberal MLA George Gregory said he would throw his support behind his colleague Mr. Gibbs.

Mr. Gregory, a Victoria lawyer, had himself been prominently mentioned as a leadership candidate, but yesterday he expressed doubt.

A leader's first task is to unite his followers, and those who urged me to run must recognize, as I do, that I am at the very least a controversial figure in the Liberal party," he said. "Willing though I would be to make substantial sacrifice if I thought it would be for the good of the Liberal party and the province it is dedicated to serve, I do not feel that I am the one who, at this time, could unite the party."

"It is good to know Mr. Gregory is behind me 100 per cent," Mr. Gibbs said. "I hope my other colleagues are behind me also."

Liberal party leadership will be decided at a party convention in Vancouver May 15 and 16.

Mr. Gregory said Mr. Gibbs has a record of success at the polls unequaled by any other Liberal in B.C.

"He has never lost an election. In the general election of 1952 he achieved the impossible by defeating Herbert Anscomb."

Courthouse New-Look Considered

Victoria city's plan for a $4,245,000 eggshell-type auditorium and a city hall below the Cathedral Hill site has caused the provincial government to take a second look at proposed designs for a new Victoria courthouse, a public works spokesman said yesterday.

He said the second look was being taken to decide to what extent, if any, the courthouse plans might be changed to conform with the surroundings of the proposed new civic buildings.

Duncan Beer Snatcher Preyed on Any Table

DUNCAN—An Indian youth who "repeatedly" ran into a local beer parlor and downed glasses of beer from "any table" before he could be thrown out, police said, was fined $30 in court yesterday.

"You were deliberately defying the law," Magistrate A. C. Sutton told Louis Wilson, 18, a Cowichan Indian.

Police said Wilson "was thrown out of the Tzouhalem Hotel several times before they were called and he was charged with being a minor in a beer parlor."

LOUIS CALLAN

HUGH SHANTZ

If Chamber of Commerce tourist trade group members will go about sporting tricorn hats like that worn by B.C. Legislature Speaker Hugh Shantz, Victoria policemen will do their bit to lure tourists by returning to "bobbies" helmets like that worn in an earlier day by Louis Callan, now a detective sergeant with the Victoria force.

Bobbies' Helmets Again

Police Willing To Act 'Fool' If Others Do

By TERRY HAMMOND

Victoria's policemen will "dress up and act like damn fools" in bobbies' helmets if members of the Victoria tourist trade group will walk the streets in "three-cornered hats, knee-breeks and wigs."

Lorne Shandley, president of the Victoria City Policemen's Union, made this statement yesterday when advised that the tourist trade group may ask the police commission to put the men back in "bobbies' helmets."

QUESTIONNAIRE
Sam Lane, chairman of the tourist trade group, said a number of private citizens have recommended such a move in replying to a public questionnaire dealing with tourist attractions.

"If enough people believe this should be done we would be prepared to go to the police commission and ask for it," he said.

Police Commissioner William J. Hamilton said: "I've told them before I have no objection to it if it is a decent helmet, but we aren't going to push it down anybody's throat."

HONORARIUM

He said policemen might be willing to wear the helmets, last of which disappeared from city streets nine years ago, if they were given some "additional honorarium."

"But nobody has offered to pay them and we certainly can't."

He pointed out that the helmets are not suitable for motorcycle policemen, nor those who spend most of their duty hours in police vehicles.

Victorians replying to the tourist trade group questionnaire have cited the helmets as one of the "little bits of old England" which attract tourists.

LOSING CHARM

Mr. Lane said the re-adoption of the helmets might help to counter recent criticism that Victoria is losing its "charm."

He cited an article in a Bellingham newspaper which said the city is losing its "distinctive character" and becoming merely another place to go.

"Bobbies' helmets used to be one of the items of great interest to tourists," he said.

NOT ORNAMENTS

Said policemen's spokesman Shandley, "We are paid to be policemen and not paid as ornaments."

"The men would wear helmets if the tourist group went around in three-cornered hats, knee-breeks and wigs."

"If the tourist group wishes to dress up and act like damn fools you can say we'll go with them."

Police Station Assault Charged to City Man

A 20-year-old Victoria man testified in police court yesterday he was dragged face down into the police charge office by the hair and struck repeatedly in the face.

Larry Montgomery, 633 Cornwall, convicted of assaulting one police constable and charged with assaulting a second, said he was grabbed by the hair as he got out of the police wagon then "dragged into the charge office, face down."

He said he struggled to regain his feet in the charge office, but officers held him down and finally turned him face down on the floor.

"HELD MY LEGS DOWN"
"They held my legs and my arms and pulled my head back while I was struck more than a dozen blows in the face by Const. Burdny," Montgomery testified.

(Const. John Burdny is the policeman Montgomery was convicted of assaulting during a street disturbance at Yates and Douglas, April 18.)

Anson Knight, 1157 Princess and John Hudson, 633 Cornwall, were picked up by police at the same time and later fined for obstructing police.

SWINGING FISTS
Yesterday Const. Ferguson, the officer Montgomery is now charged with assaulting, testified the prisoner came out of the wagon "swinging his fists and shouting."

The prisoner continued to struggle inside the charge office where four other constables and a desk sergeant were standing, the policeman said.

Const. Ferguson said he tried to grab the prisoner's flailing feet while he was being subdued. He said he got hold of one foot "and the other got me in the mouth."

COUNT MY TEETH

"I stood back to count my teeth," Const. Ferguson said. A cut in his lip was later closed with stitches at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Montgomery appeared in court, April 18, with a black eye, bruises on his face and patches of hair missing.

"How is it your face was not mashed to a pulp by all those blows?" city prosecutor T. P. O'Grady asked yesterday.

"I got the rhythm and rolled with the punches," Montgomery replied. "I counted each one... I was out for a bit..."

HAIR PULLED OUT

Under questioning by defence counsel James Proudfoot, Const. Ferguson said Montgomery could have suffered a bump over his eye and had patches of hair pulled out in the scuffle at the police station.

The case was remanded to Friday for judgment after Magistrate William Ostler said he wanted to consider the evidence.

Montgomery is also waiting sentence of the earlier assault conviction.

Chatterton:

Sewer Vote Crucial For Saanich

Approval or rejection of Saanich municipality's proposed new sewer bylaw is the most important decision ratepayers will face for many years, Reeve George Chatterton said last night.

The $1,000,000 bylaw to authorize the construction of a sewerage plant and trunk lines will be put to ratepayers in the projected sewer area on June 20.

The area affected is north of the present sewer area, bounded on the west by a ridge of land running from Shelbourne Street to Mount Douglas Park and on the north and east by sea.

Excluded from the 46 square miles area are Queenswood and Ten Mile Point districts.

If the bylaw is approved the council will proceed with installing lateral pipes and connecting houses on a local improvement petition basis.

Initial cost to ratepayers, for the installation of the plant and trunks, will be about $20 a year, Neville Life, Saanich engineer, estimates.

Grants Slower This Year

The provincial government will dole out its grants to the municipalities more slowly this year.

Result, as far as Victoria is concerned, will be extra expense in borrowing funds on a short-term basis from the bank, according to city comptroller Dennis Young.

Last year the province paid its $475,000 grant to the city in two instalments. This year, the city comptroller has been informed, the money will arrive in nine monthly payments.

Counsel Says:

'Province Is Poorer' For Loss of Briggs

By IAN STREET

British Columbia is the poorer for not having H. Lee Briggs as general manager of the B.C. Power Commission, the Shrum royal commission was told here yesterday.

Mr. Briggs' counsel, Hugh McGivern, said in his summation at yesterday's windup hearings of the royal commission inquiring into operations of the publicly-owned utility:

1. Mr. Briggs' outburst, which resulted in his dismissal and subsequent appointment of the Shrum commission, "was the action of a man who with honest integrity felt he had no other alternative in the position which he found himself."

2. Under Mr. Briggs' administration the power commission became the fastest-growing public utility in Canada, with capital spending amounting to some $50,000,000 annually and operating accounts of about $15,000,000 a year.

3. Mr. Briggs' only reason for opposing the government's original refinancing plan was that it would cost power commission customers an extra $200,000 annually in interest charges.

4. Had the refinancing scheme proposed by the Shrum commission and later adopted by the government come to Mr. Briggs as general manager, "I suggest he would have accepted it as a reasonable proposition." The reason: additional interest charges amounted to about $34,000.

CO-OPEATED

"I ask you," Mr. McGivern told the royal commission, "to find Mr. Briggs was a capable and thorough general manager as testified to by Mr. Crosby (former power commission chairman T. H. Crosby) and at all times co-operated with members of the power commission and staff."

"And I ask you also to find Mr. Briggs as a person was a man of complete integrity as far as his concept of duty to the power commission and the public of this province was concerned."

LOSS TO PROVINCE

"This province is the poorer for not having Mr. Briggs as general manager of the power commission."

Mr. McGivern said in giving evidence before the royal commission that his client was motivated by only one thought: "that of presenting all facets of the operation of a public utility in this province and particularly the operations of a publicly-owned utility."

He said Mr. Briggs at no time wished to make statements that were unfair or misleading, and asked that statements claimed by the B.C. Electric to be without proof "be accepted as expressions of personal opinion, if the royal commission wishes to investigate them."

Mr. McGivern said later, with regard to B.C. Electric criticism of Mr. Briggs' statements that poor relations existed between the two utilities, "there was nothing in Mr. Briggs' contract which said he had to love the B.C. Electric."

MANY WRANGLES

"His job was one of trying to husband the interests of his own commission, and he probably had many a business wrangle with the B.C. Electric. If he didn't, I'd say, he should have."

Mr. McGivern said that throughout the entire body of evidence presented to the royal commission, ran, a thread of testimony that "working harmony existed between the general manager (Mr. Briggs) and members of the power commission."

In winding up the royal commission hearings, which began four months ago in Vancouver, chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum paid tribute to the "very conscientious and helpful" way in which Mr. Briggs presented his evidence.

"All I can say is that Mr. Briggs has helped us in our deliberations," the chairman said.

Final report of the royal commission isn't expected before July 15.

Shrum Won't Try To Please Anyone

Dr. Gordon Shrum yesterday reiterated his statement that the final report on the royal commission investigation into operation of the B.C. Power Commission won't be completed until late July.

At the close of hearings, which lasted four months, Dr. Shrum said here yesterday: "I am thoroughly confident in predicting the final report of this commission won't please everybody. The commission won't try to please anybody. We're going to make comments as we see them."

Commissioner John Dunsmauir said: "Unlike the chairman, I'm hopeful that the report will please the majority of people."

Dr. Shrum said the final commission report would be placed in the hands of the government sometime between July 15 and Aug. 1.

Statements Bad—True or Untrue

A senior B.C. Electric official suggested to the Shrum royal commission yesterday that B.C. Power Commission employees should not "run around the province" making statements about the B.C. Electric whether they are true or untrue.

A. Bruce Robertson, chief counsel for the company, said: "If anything can lead to poor relationships between two utilities, it is to have officials of one making statements to important or unimportant groups about the other utility."

"It's bad enough if the statements are correct—it's worse when they are erroneous."

Mr. Robertson's remarks on the last day of the royal commission hearings were aimed at former general manager H. Lee Briggs and C. W. Nash, head of the power commission rate division.

Crow Question Neatly Shifted

City parks committee passed the buck yesterday when it received a complaint about crows cawing annoyingly and going after young robins in their nests around the legislative buildings and the Empress Hotel.

"I would suggest we pass the letter to the health department," said parks administrator W. H. Warren.

"That's the obvious place," said city manager C. C. Wyatt, and the aldermen agreed.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann: I'm afraid there's something wrong with me but I don't know what. I'm in the middle 20's, married, was a top student.

My problem is I can't stand tiny babies or young children. They seem senseless, destructive and useless. Infants spit up and cry. Youngsters make too much noise and ask embarrassing questions. I enjoy mature conversation. To see an adult acting infantile is revolting.

My husband is crazy about kids. He can cuddle a baby for hours and get down on the floor and play with a two-year-old. In my opinion, he looks like a fool, making faces, crawling on all fours, as if he were two years old himself.

My husband wants a family. How can I be a mother feeling as I do about babies? I suppose I could clothe and feed them and hide my true feelings, but I admit I would not enjoy my children until they were old enough to leave home. What's wrong with me? — C.H.

Plain Immaturity

Two things — enormous insecurity and plain immaturity. Because you're emotionally a child yourself, you consider children competition. YOU want all the attention. When a two-year-old captures the audience with his inane gibberish you're annoyed.

Your own insecurity makes you fearful of what a child might do to your "dignity." You dread being "exposed" or made to look "silly" by the frank questions a child might ask — such as "Why are your feet so big?" or "Why do you put black crayon on your eyebrows?"

You need professional help and I hope you get it before you bring children into the world.

Dear Ann: This problem has been with us for years. People always say the "good girl wins out in the end," but when will "the end" come?

Our school, like all high schools, has its trampy girls. They are of average intelligence, not bad looking and have a certain amount of sophistication that fascinates the boys.

The nice guys rip them apart verbally and claim they wouldn't be caught dead in their company. Yet when a dance is announced, these girls are asked first. It wouldn't be bad if the third-rate boys asked them, but they get bids from the best guys.

These girls wind up with three, and four invitations while the nice girls are forced to accept a bid from a fellow who has been turned down by three tramps.

I've heard these girls never make it to the altar, but they sure lead a full life in high school. How about this? — T.B.O.

Five Dates a Month

Dear T.B.O.: You wouldn't be a tramp if it would assure you five more dates a month, would you? Of course not. Well, quit beefing.

Don't envy the fast and loose girls who seem to be doing so well. Their lives aren't as "full" as it appears. Just stay on the pedestal and remember that's where men look when they want something special — like to marry.

Dear Ann Landers: I married a childhood sweetheart three years ago and we have a baby boy now. About six months ago she started to ask me some odd questions such as "How many women under 30 work in my section?" and "Is there a brunette girl about 5 feet 2" anywhere in the office?"

Last night she said the reason I was half an hour late getting home from the office was NOT because I had to clean out the file cabinet, but because I was romancing with the brunette in the office.

I got mad and insisted she tell me where she was getting these crazy ideas. She admitted she was going to a fortune-teller, and that she'd been tipped off by a friend.

My wife is a nice person and really not as stupid as she sounds, but she's extremely glib. What do you recommend? — ROX

Dear Rox: Tell your wife you got it straight from your private witch-doctor that if she doesn't quit going to mumbo-jumbo fakers, she's going to have real trouble. Be plenty firm — and let her know you're very disappointed in her vote of no confidence.

To learn the difference between a marriage that "settles down" and one that "gets dull," send for Ann Landers' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

ENHANCED BOSOMLINE

However slender, both teen and mature figures are improved by a brassiere. For the teen, this means a light garment, especially designed to mold the growing figure. For the woman, it means brassieres that lift and define curves.

Bras, sized AA to A, enhance contours by means of diagonal constructions, cushioned wiring, stiffened banding and laminated padding. But so that your choice contributes to health and comfort as well as appearance, seek the advice and fitting skill of the corsetiere in your favorite mart. Easy Credit Hit WINNIPEG (CP)—The lure of easy credit, which gets families into financial difficulties, is one of the major reasons why assistance is sought from the family bureau, one of the agencies in the Winnipeg Community Chest.

Marjorie Moore, executive director of the bureau, told the annual meeting of the Community Chest that families frequently come to the bureau for help in a financial crisis. She mentioned two examples, threatened unemployment due to garnishees, and the prospect of eviction for non-payment of rent.

The family in financial difficulties is helped to draw up a budget and to untangle the easy-credit "merry-go-round." Fifty-seven Winnipeg families received financial help last year.

Altogether, 2,461 families were helped in various ways by the bureau during 1958. Apart from easy credit, she said, major causes for breakdown of family life were alcoholism, poor mental or physical health, misunderstandings between husband and wife, or between parents and children.

Here's a Rainy Day Dish —Locally-Made Tamales

Just the thing for a rainy day meal, TV snack, party treat or shipboard meal are brand-new locally-made spicy tamales, long a popular item as a favorite dish in Mexico. Brim full of chicken and swimming in a secretly blended sauce with a black olive surprise, the tamales are wrapped in foil and cello with a distinctive pale green and sienna red label. (In Mexico, tamales come wrapped in corn husks.)

The local tamales are pre-cooked and frozen and can be reheated either in boiling water, in a slow oven or by barbecuing. They're being introduced at the larger stores and smaller chain stores across the city.

To go with the tamales, priced at 53 cents, there is a sauce that also can be used to dress up fish, warm up cold meat such as chicken or used as sauce on spaghetti. Sold separately in a four-ounce container, the price is 15 cents. Both sauce and tamales are made and processed in a home-maker's kitchen and come fresh straight to you.

Anyway, the rain won't hurt the rhubarb—the local variety just soaks it up. This three-day April shower we've been experiencing has been called a "million dollar rain" for local growers, although it is slowing down the planting of some mixed vegetable crops in lower areas.

Strawberries from California are coming in in better volume. Crops are quite early this year and good weather allowed for an extra bloom, so prices are quite reasonable at about 39 cents a basket.

The first of the early California cantaloupes should reach the city by this weekend or possibly Monday. What's around now is mostly Mexican. These melons are planted by hand on slopes facing the sun with frost shields behind them to ensure growth. When the plants are young, they're individually "capped" each night before bedtime. Consequently, for the next few weeks, prices will remain around the 49 cents mark but by the May 16 weekend, they'll be plentiful and cheaper.

Also for the holiday weekend we'll be seeing fresh honest-to-gosh peaches from California. The white variety will be picked on Monday in Bakersfield and will be shipped in small quantities around the nation, some reaching us.

Local hot-house tomatoes are swinging into volume now and in a few weeks will be excellent. They need ripening and at present sell for about 79 cents a pound. It'll be more like 39 cents a pound in a few weeks.

Other new arrivals include California small cooking onions, vine-ripened California field tomatoes, and watermelons also from the more northern areas, bunch beets at 23 to 25 cents and imported Australian onions selling for about two pounds for 39 cents.

Bran Apricot Bread Tasty Morning Treat

If you'd like to get an interesting response to your morning call of "Breakfast's ready," vary your menu. Serve delicious hot breads.

One such bread is Bran Apricot Bread, prepared with bananas, apricots, walnut meats, buttermilk and whole bran cereal. Serve it with butter or cream cheese.

BRAN APRICOT BREAD

One and a quarter cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon baking soda, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup mashed ripe bananas, 1/2 cup buttermilk or sour milk, 1/2 cup shortening, 1/2 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1 cup All-Bran whole bran cereal, 1/2 cup cut dried apricots, 1/2 cup chopped walnut meats.

Sift together flour, baking powder, soda and salt. Combine bananas and buttermilk. Blend shortening and sugar; add eggs and beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with buttermilk mixture, stirring after each addition only until combined. Stir in All-Bran, apricots and nutmeats. Spread in greased 9 1/2 x 5 1/4-inch pan. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) about 1 hour, or until done. Yield: 1 loaf.

Alberni Area Gets First Power From Big, New Ash River Plant

The British Columbia Power Commission's new 35,000-horsepower Ash River generating station turned out its first kilowatt of power at noon yesterday and will be placed in service within the next few days.

The new plant increases the BCPC generating capacity on Vancouver Island to 435,000 horsepower and marks the first time in the utility's 14-year history that Island reserve capability is available.

Construction of the development, which is about 27 miles north of the Alberni, started in January, 1957.

The output of the plant will be used almost exclusively for the power-hungry Alberni Valley, where MacMillan & Bloedel recently completed an $83,000,000 expansion of pulp, paper and plywood operations.

The Ash River development includes five earth-fill dams, three miles of tunnel, two miles of woodstave pipeline, penstock and powerhouse.

The dams back up and impound the waters of Ash River and Elsie Lake. The level of the lake has been raised by 50 feet and the storage area increased from 550 acres to 1,650 acres.

The water falls 742 feet in the five miles which separate the reservoir and the powerhouse on the shore of Great Central Lake.

'Denuded'

500-Acre Scalping Charged

PORT ALBERNI — The department of lands and forests will be asked to investigate logging operations in Port Alberni's watershed where, according to report, some 500 acres of land has been completely denuded of forest.

Superintendent Len Crowshaw warned that there would be little water for the late summer supply from the area where "next to nothing" had been left standing.

Pictures of the area will be forwarded to the department, along with the request for investigation of the operations carried on by San Juan Logging Co.

Mr. Crowshaw suggested that there had been laxity on the part of government officials to permit the wholesale clearing. The whole top end of the basin has been decimated, he said.

In a report to council, Mr. Crowshaw said that snow conditions in the watershed are about normal for this time of year, with two feet in the basin ends, rapidly deepening to 10' as altitude increases. There is snow of approximately 50' in depth on mountain tops, he said.

'Culls' Salvaged

Seedlings Rushed Into Soil

DUNCAN — Forest Service officials here are hurrying the transplanting of "culls" salvaged from B.C.'s four government nurseries in an effort to help to reduce the expected shortage of trees for reforestation in 1960.

About 500,000 seedlings from the nurseries at Campbell River, New Westminster and Cranbrook will be replanted here, in a nursery that, because of soil and temperature reasons, is usually used for growing trees from seeds.

"Normally these trees, all sorts of weak year-old ones, would have been thrown out if they could not be used for reforestation," said Jack Long who is in charge of the 28-acre nursery. "But this year because of the shortage they will be salvaged."

The rejects from other nurseries are being planted here some at the rate of 5,000 an hour.

And for the first time here, a transplanting machine is being used to put the fragile stems and roots into the ground by a machine that moves only 600 feet in 50 minutes.

Lad's Scalp Lock May Set Style

DUNCAN — A seven-year-old way for the last three summer. They were in style in Ontario two years ago when we left to come to Crofton," said Derreck's mother. "We've been cutting their hair like that every summer since."

Mrs. Burnell said most of the hair is cut off with scissors, and then the bald sides are "shaved" with her husband's electric razor.

"It can't be beat for being cool," she said. "Only drawback is that they need a hat in bright sunlight."

What does Derreck think of it? "I like 'm. The girls do too," he said.

Clinics Set On Island

NANAIMO — Dr. C. J. G. MacKenzie of the Central Vancouver Island Health Unit announced that free polio clinics for persons up to 40 will open in various Island centres in May. Clinics will open in Lake Cowichan May 5; Duncan, May 11 and 13; Chemainus, May 8; Ladysmith, May 11; Nanaimo, May 25; Qualicum Beach, May 25 and Port Alberni, May 11 and 13.

Ex-U.S. Driver Fined $25

DUNCAN — A former Washington State resident who came here on a "settlers" permit was fined $25 yesterday for operating a car without a Canadian driver's licence.

James DeWilde, Victoria, explained he entered the country in December and planned to use his American licence until it expired in 1960 because he had not been told he was required to get a Canadian licence.

Garden Notes

Not Too Much Shade

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

HYDRANGEA CULTURE—

(W.J.K., Victoria). The hydrangea plant given to you for Easter should be planted outdoors in May, but not in a position of dense shade, as your friend suggested. This shrub needs a little sun, and a site on the east side of the house is ideal, where it will get the morning sun but shaded from the stronger rays of the afternoon.

This plant likes rotted leaves and a bit of coarse sand incorporated in its planting site, and is a hound for water—it will be the first plant in the garden to droop during a dry spell.

WEEDKILLER FOR PATHS—(H.S.M., Oak Bay). Common borax does a pretty good job of sterilizing the soil under gravel and cinder paths so grass and weeds won't grow. Use one pound for each five gallons of water and apply with a watering can, using enough of the solution to drench the soil thoroughly.

Dowpon, a proprietary chemical, does a grand job of killing grass in a path, but it doesn't take out the broad-leaved weeds.

CROWN IMPERIAL—(W.P., Glen Lake). Your unthrifty Crown Imperial has probably exhausted its soil. This plant is a prolific producer of offsets, and while most of the garden books tell you to leave it undisturbed, I find that mine do better when lifted every second year, the offsets removed and planted elsewhere, and the parent plant replanted in a new site.

It likes a deep, humusy soil in light shade and a fair amount of lime.

POSTAIL LILY—(W.P., Glen Lake). The Eremurus thrives best in a sandy loam soil enriched with bone meal, and in full sun. One common fault in the culture of this plant is too-deep planting, for they are as fussy as peonies in this respect. The crown of the root should be exactly two inches below the soil surface.

If you move your plant, do the job with extreme care, for the roots, shaped like a starfish, are very brittle and snap off if you as much as look harshly at them. Plant with the roots spread out flat.

FERN TROUBLES—(L.B.E., Youbou). One possible reason why your fern grows so poorly is too much heat or too much sun. They like an even temperature and cannot tolerate the fierce, dry heat near a radiator or hot air register. They need plenty of light, but not much direct sunshine, and usually do best in an east or north window.

Better try repotting your fern into fresh, woody soil with some rotted leaves and sand mixed in. Have a good look at the roots while you have it out of its pot, and check up in this way on your watering technique. The condition of the root ball will show you whether you have been giving too much or too little.

Television in Review

Reverence for Old Bones

NEW YORK (UPI)—"Ah, Wilderness!" a Eugene O'Neill meringue baked back in 1933, is one of those uncomplicated celebrations of wholesomeness that threatens constantly to topple into fatuity.

It is a kind of Penrod with sex, or to change the image, a clumsy Norman Rockwell cover redeemed from banality by the thread of coarse vitality that weaves through its innards.

NBC-TV's Hallmark Hall of Fame presented a 90-minute version of "Ah, Wilderness!" and handled its creaky bones with reverence and a good deal of skill. Robert Hartung's adaptation was tight and geared admirably for the TV screen and director Bob Mulligan pumped enough oil and movement into its skeleton to keep it from looking like three Father Knows Bests bunched back-to-back.

There's not much to trouble an audience in "Ah, Wilderness!" Uncle Sid drinks and is canned from jobs, but he is essentially a comic figure; young Richard is tortured by adolescence, but we know he is made of Good Stuff and will muddle-his-way-through-to-happiness; Aunt Lily is settling down into old-maidishness, but she seems to have adjusted to it; mother worries and father frets, but they are worries and frets that never really threaten their gingercake existence.

The cast approached its tasks with varying degrees of efficiency. I liked Burgess Meredith, Betty Field, Dolores Sutton and a young lady named Abigail Kellog. Lloyd Nolan had a little trouble mouthing his lines, but was quite solid, particularly in the "facts-of-life" scene which he played with just the proper amount of fumbling embarrassment. Lee Kinsolving as the young man had an uneven evening—sometimes just right, sometimes off-centre.

As for Helen Hayes, who played Mama, she was at her most Helen Hayesish. Miss Hayes does not walk into a scene, she sails in—her banners flying, her guns firing. Unfortunately, she fires blanks.

Last night, Miss Hayes fetched out her whole satchel of tricks: quavering voice, crinkled eyebrows, hair-patting hand, brave little chin. She offered: a hand to the head (anxiety), a hand to the lips, mouth slightly open (trepidation), a hand rapping sharply (admiration), a biting of the lower lip (fretfulness), a hand to the breast (oh, dear). It was an empty, manufactured exercise in fakery.

Hollywood Today

By Sheilah Graham

Bing's Boys Won't Tell a Thing

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—The Crosby boys have turned down $75,000 from a national magazine to give their version of whether Bing Crosby was a good father to them or not. If their night-club act works out, the Crosby boys will have a September date at the London Palladium.

Charlie Chaplin has given his blessing to son Sidney's marriage to Noelle Adam, French dancer. "Whatever my son and Noelle decide to do is all right with me," says Chaplin. But Sidney and Noelle are still undecided.

No wonder Sir Laurence Olivier is being so jolly with everyone during his Hollywood sojourn—his salary for "Spartacus" is a nice round $250,000.

I asked Dean Martin, on the "Career" set, "How do you stay so thin?" "Simple," said Dean. "Eat all you can—just don't swallow it."

Is it a July wedding for Barbara Hutton's racing-car heir, Lance Revettow, and 20th Century-Fox starlet, Jill St. John? They're back on the beam again, smooching all over town.

John Ford is directing a couple of documentaries in the Far East for the department of defence, with former "western" star George O'Brien. Ford is a rear-admiral and O'Brien a captain in the naval reserve.

Marlene Dietrich is writing a cook book—a sort of how-to-hold-your-man-via-the-tummy.

Between takes and scenes on the set of "Girls' Town" at Metro—I am playing Sister Grace in the Al Zugmuth production—it's amazing how the mere wearing of the nun's habit induces a feeling of peaceful serenity.

Robert Montgomery almost said "good morning, Sister," then smiled as he recognized me. It has been 15 years since Robert worked at Metro, and some of the employees were so glad to see him back, they wept. Bob is producing "The Admiral Halsey Story" for United Artists, with Jimmy Cagney as the admiral.

"What's My Line?" is off the air on BBC. The most popular television shows in England are Wagon Train, Gun Law, the George Burns Show, Wyatt Earp, Robin Hood and M Squad.

The working title of the next book by Art Linkletter of CBS' House Party is "The Secret World of Kids," subtitled, "How to Enjoy Children in Spite of Them."

Red Skelton hopes to sign Mexican comedian Cantinflas for his own TV story, "The King Brays," for a possible Desilu show. The other actor is a burro.

Opening lead: ♥J

Don't let the "suggested" bidding throw you. South doesn't have more than a single raise to two spades, and North-South can earn par on the Intercollegiate hand by stopping at three spades and making four, or by doubling four hearts if East-West attempt to outbid them.

After winning the heart, West exits with a trump.

North's ace fells East's blank queen and reveals the trump break, and declarer can count on ten tricks if he brings in the remainder of his side's trumps separately. A heart ruff is followed by a diamond return. If West plays low, North puts in the jack—a safe play since East can't play another trump.

East wins, and can do no better than shift to clubs, and here the timing becomes vital. Declarer needs two diamond ruffs, so he leads to his diamond ace and returns a club, winning dummy's second high one before West can discard.

Next he ruffs a diamond—overruffing West if necessary—and trumps his last heart in dummy. On the next diamond lead, if West ruffs, North discards his losing club. If West discards, North makes his low trump and exits with a club. Making four odd scores now, whether game is bid or not.

No A-Weapons for Canada's Army

By VAL SEARS

The Canadian army is not likely to get a nuclear punch. Despite cries from army brass that without atom arms Canada soon will have "the best trained, best fed, best paid and most useless army in the world."

The cabinet—one ear cocked to the army-heavy defence department and the other to the cost-conscious finance department—remains reluctant to do any shopping in the West's expensive nuclear arsenal. The first step in bolstering the role of a conventionally-armed land army was taken recently when the army was handed civil defence.

SECRET REPORT
The army's civil defence job—National Survival in military jargon—is reported in Ottawa to be the most controversial section of the secret report on civil defence made by Lt. Gen. Howard D. Graham. The report is believed to make clear that in the event of a nuclear attack on this country—under martial law—the army may have to ring contaminated areas and prevent anyone trying to leave. The role of Canada's land forces as a fighting group has been, in Defence Minister

... survival role

Peckers' words, "downgraded to a strategic reserve." VALUE SHAKY
And in view of President Eisenhower's remark that the United States does not intend to fight a ground war in Europe, the military value of Canada's NATO brigade in Germany appears somewhat shaky. There is, of course, the Canadian Army's United Nations Expeditionary force in the Middle East, a unit that draws the highest praise in Washington.

In fact, there is growing speculation in Ottawa and in the Pentagon that this is the only overseas duty that a Canadian army can be expected to perform. NEW ROLE
But it is in its new role as a National Survival corps that it is likely the Canadian Army will come into its own in the missile age.

As far as the regular army is concerned, it is the view of Maj. Gen. Jean Allard, vice-chief of the army general staff, that it can "live on the atomic battlefield." The question is whether it is ever going to have to. There is substantial agreement among politicians and generals on both sides of the border that any use of tactical nuclear weapons can only lead to general inter-continental missile war.

OVER BY THEN
In such a war, there would certainly be survivors and perhaps a necessity of invading enemy territory, but to all intents and purposes the war would be over by that time and it would simply be a matter of occupation.

In the multitude of choices about what kind of war the Canadian army would be called upon to fight—it had to fight at all—the Korea-type "brushfire" war is high on the list. Such wars, requiring the kind of highly mobile airborne army Mr. Peckers is trying to create, would have to be fought with conventional weapons if it is to be contained.

DESIGN STOLEN?
The government has been trying unsuccessfully to peddle the Bobcat to other countries and is reportedly bitter about its rejection. One scientist claimed the British swiped our design and built their own, slightly bigger version. If the British won't buy it, and the U.S. don't want it, it is unlikely it will go into production solely for Canadian troops.

As an offensive missile force now, the Canadian army has one surface-to-surface Lacrosse battery, capable of firing nuclear warheads. The cost: $1,198,000 for four launchers and 12 missiles.

NO DECISION
The army also wants the Hawk, surface-to-air missile, but there has been no decision as to whether it's going to get it. Just what the army is going to do with missile-carrying nuclear warheads is anybody's guess. A decision will have to be made soon what they will be used for and if it's worthwhile having them.

MAJ-GEN. ALLARD
... can live

Even if the only wars the Canadian army will fight are limited ones with conventional weapons, the generals must prepare for a surprise tactical nuclear attack.

REORGANIZED
For this reason, the regular army is being organized on the new "pentomic" lines, by which a brigade group of 7,000 will hold an area formerly held by 40,000 to 50,000 troops. The dispersal of men to avoid atomic annihilation requires better communication equipment, and this the army is developing.

The militia has for some time been fed up with the government's half-hearted approach to the civil defence role.

ONLY SO MUCH
Said one militia officer: "There is only so much a man can do in civil defence—running around the army once a week with a ladder, a first-aid kit and a block and tackle." It has been the government's view—that it probably will continue—that top control of civil defence should remain with the department of health and welfare.

Canada's principal civil defence establishment at Arrprior, now under health and welfare, will probably be turned over to the army, and the excellent army radiation detection unit, now based at Barriefield, Que., expanded in groups across the country.

MORE TRAINING
Militiamen hope the new policy will mean more and better equipment for them and improved technical training in such skills in rubble tunnelling, shoring, blasting and acetylene cutting.

The Ottawa debate within the defence department is about whether such other roles as an offensive nuclear capacity and tactical nuclear defence—both expensive—are necessary. The odds are the government will decide they are not.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, APRIL 30, 1959

$1,000,000 Month Local Target

Real Estate Sales Head for Record

Profession 'Polices' Agents, Salesmen

A new record in real estate sales may be established in 1959, according to Col. B. Russell Ker, president of the Real Estate Board of Victoria.

There are a lot of new subdivisions springing up and both lots and houses are selling readily, he said.

Last month, the Multiple Listings Bureau of the board accumulated $975,000 worth of real estate deals and is now aiming at $1,000,000 in one month.

And Col. Ker confidently expects that mark to be reached this spring.

"March was the biggest month we have ever had," he said. He had no idea how much business had been done by real estate firms outside the multiple listings bureau, but he estimated it would reach several million dollars in March.

As president of the Real Estate Board in Victoria, Col. Ker is responsible for both assisting and policing some 53 agents and 407 real estate salesmen in Victoria.

Unscrupulous real estate operators find the pickings lean in Victoria, thanks to the policing action of this association of realtors.

Broadly speaking, the board aims at eliminating the unscrupulous, checking the incompetent and removing this part-time exploiter.

But it makes no attempt to remove competition—just unscrupulous competition.

Usually, the biggest purchase ever made in the average person's lifetime is a piece of land with a house on it.

That is why it is important to have the best advice when the decision to buy has been made.

Col. Ker and his fellow members believe the best way to be sure is to discuss the matter with a member of the Real Estate Board of Victoria.

"Our members adhere to a strict code of ethics which assures protection to the public and loyalty to fellow agents," Col. Ker says.

Through their part in the Victoria board, members are associated with the B.C. Association of Real Estate Boards and the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards.

Col. Ker expresses pride that through the efforts of the B.C. board a chair of real estate has been established at University of B.C. under Prof. Philip White. It is now possible to major in real estate under the bachelor of commerce course and the real estate board has guaranteed $50,000 over five years to ensure the chair.

KEEN DEMAND
Establishment of the course was the result of many years of hard endeavor by the Board, which had a sincere concern with filling a keen demand for well-trained salesmen whose work will be honest and careful.

Realtors feel strongly that there is no place in real estate for the do-it-yourselfer or the incompetent dealer.

The buying of a house—the investment of what to most families amounts to the total of several years' income—is something to be approached with a good many things in mind.

The house itself must be right, the price must be right, the financing arrangements must be right and if the deal is to be made smoothly and with complete satisfaction, the agent must know his business inside and out.

He must know what homes are on the market and their value. He must know the hidden factors in choosing a home and help the buyer understand them, offering thoughtful guidance when necessary.

He must above all be a man of integrity.

FIRST SEEN

As far back as 1907, responsible real estate men of Victoria saw the need of some organization to regulate the business from within, setting up standards of competence and ethics to protect the public and in the long view their own profession.

The Victoria Real Estate Board was formed Feb. 21, 1907, under the name Real Estate Exchange Ltd. The name was changed in 1921.

There were about 20 members at the formation and later, during hard times, membership dropped to 16 at one period.

Helping Col. Ker to guide operations of the board now are William Bailey as first vice-president, Philip Holmes as second vice-president, W. S. Kirkpatrick, L. E. Kirk, Louis M. Corke, F. M. Cabell and Don Harvey as directors, Mrs. Catherine Godfrey as secretary and A. H. Reed as past president.

COL. B. RUSSELL KER

There are important safeguards any home-owner or home-buyer can take to be certain of competence.

Most important is that everyone who is going to purchase a house should obtain a solicitor's services in carrying out the transaction. Average cost for the service is $15 to $25, excellent insurance that the buyer will get what he buys.

Climate of Victoria One of World's Best

Victoria has one of the best climates in the world. Figures prove it. In spring the average temperature is 53.3 maximum and 42.3 minimum; summer, 67 maximum and 51.2 minimum; fall, 56.7 and 45.6 and in winter 44.4 and 36.6.

Average date of first killing frost is Dec. 4 and last March 4, which makes it an ideal city for gardeners. Average rainfall annually is 27.15 inches.

20th Century Progress Eases Modern Living

Some of the technical progress of the last 60 years has reached the home level. Engineered central heating systems have replaced the traditional fireplaces; and engineered kitchens, bathrooms and laundries are now commonplace. Engineered lighting can be found everywhere but in the home.

We can make homes as safe, convenient and comfortable every day as they are occasionally by natural light alone on good days. This includes those critical areas outside the home such as steps, entrances, walkways and driveways that are so important for safety, convenience, comfort and protection against intruders.

The problems of visibility, efficiency and comfort can be successfully solved in the modern home by applying the lighting principles and practices which have been developed in the fields of office, school, industrial and street lighting. This concept involves the separate consideration of the functional lighting, which is a matter of engineering and planning, and the environmental lighting, which is a matter of taste and is determined largely by the occupant of the house.

The latter is most simply met by the judicious use of portable lamps and decorative fixtures; the former, by planning the lighting at the same time the other mechanical services are decided upon.

Planned, Orderly Informality Supplies Keynote

Several interesting modern architectural ideas are combined here in the designing of the house and newly-planted garden of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert P. R. Brown, 3045 Beach Drive.

Spring Festival Time

Area Gardens Open to Public

Specially Arranged Tours Delight Eye and Heart

No matter where one looks Victoria's gardens are overflowing with spring flowers. It is little wonder the Chamber of Commerce has adopted the slogan "Spring Comes First to Victoria," for this city and the district surrounding it leads all Canada in its bountiful displays of spring color and beauty.

Through Victoria's door spring enters Canada.

This is a gardener's delight and from early March Victoria's boulevards, parks and gardens sprout greenery and color which win acclaim from garden lovers all over the world.

GATES OPEN

Each spring owners of the beautiful and varied gardens of Victoria throw open their gates to the public so everyone may enjoy, admire and photograph the magnificent blending of spring blooms, shrubs, rare conifers, fine lawns and stately native trees. This year the Spring Garden Festival of the Victoria Horticultural Society will be held May 7, 8 and 9 and will feature a new tour of Saanich Peninsula gardens as well as the many old favorites which have been visited in past years.

HEADQUARTERS

Festival headquarters again this year will be at the C & C Taxi, 906 Government Street, and will be open at 9 a.m. daily, starting May 4, for registration and assistance of guests.

Visiting hours are 1 to 5 p.m. for the specified gardens of May 7, 8 and 9.

Registration and transportation fee, which covers admission and bus transportation to the listed gardens, is $1.75 a day or 75c a day for those using their own transportation.

Buses leave festival headquarters at 1 p.m. and return about 5:30 p.m. There will be tea and rest stops in mid-afternoon.

Here is a brief description of some of the gardens that will be open to the public during this year's Spring Garden Festival:

At 1964 Fairfield, Mr. and Mrs. N. Abkhazi have a large area of glacial rock formation dominating the scene. Reflected in the pools are flowering shrubs and trailing plants in all their colorful spring glory. Featured are a large variety of hybrid brooms introducing many new colors and species, and hybrid rhododendrons and many azaleas including standard mollis. Two exceptionally fine specimens of the rarely-seen weeping blue spruce should be noted by visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. V. W. Ahier, 1233 Palmer Road, have a garden which is definitely for the connoisseurs in rock gardening. Rock and alpine plants, flowering shrubs, rhododendrons and azaleas are seen in natural settings. The Ahier garden is an example of a garden planned for owner maintenance and includes fruit trees, vegetables and a greenhouse.

Several interesting modern architectural ideas are combined in the designing of the house and newly planted garden of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert P. R. Brown, 3045 Beach Drive. This garden will be of special interest to those redesigning an existing garden or planting a new one.

A new garden on display for the festival this year is that of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Blair, The Latch on All Bay Road. Much patience and training has been needed to espalier the many fruit trees which border the long driveway. Across the expansive lawn is a border of herbaceous perennials, 12 feet wide by 150 feet long, which provides a wealth of bloom through all seasons. From a private beach in front of the house may be seen lofty mountains towering over many small islands and the blue water of the bay.

The garden of Mr. and Mrs. Theo Diminyatz, 617 St. Charles, is on an average-size city lot and is an example of how varied and interesting planting can give year-round delight. Standard wisterias, brooms and forsythias are featured.

Another new garden on display this year is that of Mr. and Mrs. Chet Dowman, 4021 Shelbourne, which features spacious lawns, formal landscaping in the modern manner and is interplanted to ensure a wealth of bloom all year round.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Edgell, Little Lane, 3230 Beach Drive, have a garden of delight for all. It has been artistically planned using natural rock formations, pools, trees, shrubs, rock and alpine and woodland areas. The colorful foliage of cut-leaf silver birches, copper beeches and native oaks gives a background to the flowering cherry and crabapple trees. The woodland garden is gay with spring bulbs, carpets of anemone and lilies-of-the-valley. Near a pool on the front lawn with overhanging Japanese maples is a 75-year-old specimen in a Suchow tub.

Another lovely garden reclaimed from bushland is that of Mr. and Mrs. Anson Firth, Colbae, 2676 Queenswood Drive. The natural contours are used to advantage with rock pools as the keynote. Featured is an excellent collection of flowering shrubs and some unusual alpine covering the rocks.

On display for the first time this year is the garden of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Hammill, 8337 Patricia Bay Highway. The natural beauty of this coastal property has been skillfully developed by the addition of magnificent flowering shrubs. Near the house a rock wall provides a home for many alpine treasures.

The adjoining gardens of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. McCubben and Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Watson, 5050 and 5060 Cordova notice because of its alpine section where many small treasures make it a delight to the observer.

Spencer Wood, Ardmore Road, the garden of Mr. and Mrs. N. Pavelic, is another new garden on display. Here on the shore of Saanich Inlet mature trees and fine borders frame wide lawns sweeping down to the sea.

Miss A. M. Woodroffe, 3150 Tarn Place, has a garden in which the orderly informality of heather in variety and spreading junipers with sweeps of lawn form a colorful contrast against the blue water of Juan de Fuca Strait and the distant Olympic Mountains.

The home of Mrs. H. L. Savard-Wilson is a Tudor-style house standing in a perfect setting of native trees underplanted with woodland flowers. The open garden is landscaped to the shoreline and features dwarf conifers and rock plants and a herbaceous border.

Mortgage Insurance Sound Investment

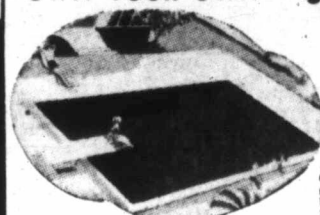

Mortgage insurance is a good investment in these days when few young families can afford to pay cash for a home.

Insurance companies offer various plans of mortgage insurance, but they all have one thing in common: widow is left with clear title to the home and will not have to continue to make mortgage payments while trying to raise and educate children; or sell the home quickly at a disadvantage with perhaps only a small equity.

Humans Love But Pests Detest Versatile Western Red Cedar

The giant Western red cedar is undoubtedly the most versatile wood nature has provided for interior or exterior construction.

Its resistance to weather, natural insulation qualities and real wood cannot be duplicated.

Western red cedar is free from pitch, resin, and will not warp, twist nor check and if paint or stain is desired it will take either readily. The wood has a very low shrinkage factor and its inherent qualities discourage wood destroying fungi. Its fresh aroma, though pleasant to humans, has proven to be a repellent to insects, vermin and destructive animals such as porcupines.

The millions of microscopic cells in Western red cedar retard heat transmission—three inches of cedar has insulating qualities equal to 21 inches of masonry.

Neighbors, by co-operating in local improvement plans, encouraged by all four municipalities, are helping to increase home values in Greater Victoria.

Each municipality varies slightly in its approach to local improvements, but principle is the same; if most residents of a block want curbs and gutters, a sidewalk, or the road paved, municipality will do the work and residents can share cost on an easy-payment plan.

In the recently decorated living room of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Champion, Cedar Hill Road, imported Danish tables of solid teak have been combined with a delicately scaled chesterfield of Canadian design. Notice how the soft sculptured lines of the Danish chair and table are echoed in the chesterfield.

The 'Sculptured Look'

New Furniture Exciting

One of Victoria's leading authorities on furniture styling, interior decorator Rowland Brown, reports on the sculptured look.

By ROWLAND BROWN

A new and exciting change is taking place in furniture styling.

Those of you who have browsed through Victoria's furniture stores in recent months will, I am sure, have sensed a distinct transformation in the appearance of much furniture now being featured.

Not so long ago, furniture manufacturers in Canada were using the 'veneer' production method very extensively. While much fine furniture was developed, the very nature of this manufacturing process seemed to dictate that designs be straight-lined, angular, simple.

CREATION LIMITED

This put certain limitations on the creativeness of our furniture designers.

It became obvious to many of our leading stylists that if there were to be a new and fresh approach in furniture design, then certainly some change in the method of production would be necessary. So changes were made and by far the most influential of these has been the return to the use of solid woods.

DELICACY OF FORM

There is no doubt that the introduction of Danish furniture to the Canadian market further stimulated this thinking. People were quick to recognize the delicacy of form being achieved by gifted Danish designers and craftsmen when working with solid woods — teak, oak and beechwood. In short, Canadians were being exposed to "the sculptured look" — and they reacted excitedly to it.

So, to those of you looking for furniture which is distinctively new in design and which expresses up-to-the-minute good taste, I suggest that you eye carefully the work of our most talented Canadian designers.

Many of them are now working with solid woods — walnut, birch, elm, maple, cherry — blending clean sculptured lines with perfectly balanced proportions.

If you are a lover of traditional styles, then keep in mind that several of today's best designers, seeking a pleasing balance between modern needs and the charm of truly antique types of furniture, are producing stylings where these two requirements are sensitively blended.

Remember, wood properly used in its natural solid form adapts perfectly to any mood, modern or old world.

PIERS ISLAND

Everyone Shares Paradise

Work has now started on the subdivision of 240-acre Piers Island into a 100-home holiday island for people in the middle income brackets.

Every one of the 100 lots which will soon be offered for sale will have waterfrontage on the fascinating little island just off the tip of Saanich Peninsula, near Swartz Bay.

Now under construction is a 66-foot gravel access road which will circle the island, touching the landward sides of all the half-acre to 1½-acre lots on the island.

The subdividers, Gulf Resorts Ltd., hope to introduce a practical method which will enable lot purchasers around the perimeter of the island to control under their own administration the large central portion of the island which contains about 160 acres.

One way suggested is to form a separate company to own the central area, with each owner holding one voting share.

Other methods suggested include formation of an improvement district administered by trustees selected from property owners, an organization under the Societies Act, or a co-operative organization.

Golf, Playgrounds

Suggested projects include formation of a water district and distribution system; an electric power and distribution system; construction of a sheltered boat basin, construction of a small golf course; a warm salt water swimming pool; children's playgrounds.

Reginald Fraser Biscoe, whose company is agent for the subdivision, says lots will be priced for "the middle income brackets and will sell in the range of $2,500, with easy terms available."

Mr. Biscoe said that 23 lots are now being laid out for sale this year and these are on the part of the island opposite Swartz Bay. In this area two 50-foot floats have already been installed in South Bay, where there is ample water for mooring boats up to 40 feet, even at low water.

A gradual development is planned through limited lot sales and in this way it is anticipated that early occupants will encourage their friends to participate, which in time would produce a group of strongly community-minded occupants.

"The whole scheme is being patterned on the principle of summer camp sites," Mr. Biscoe said.

Butterfield, Hughes and Mawle of Victoria are now surveying the lots, and Skelly Construction Co., of Vancouver, has bulldozers and gravel trucks on the island building the road.

Mr. Biscoe explained that the natural beauty and open park-like atmosphere of the island is being considered in the road-building program and that all stumps and debris are being grubbed and burned.

Miles of Waterfront

The island has three miles of beautiful waterfront, most of which is easily accessible from low banks.

There are 17 individual beaches on the island and the plan calls for some beach areas to be set aside for community use.

Fresh water is no problem. There are seven active deep wells and several shallow wells on the island and during the 1930s when the island was used as a Doukhobor prison more than 600 persons obtained their water supply from the wells.

Subdividers plan two restrictive covenants in all deeds. One is that no land parcel less than 1½ acres may be subdivided, and also that only one family dwellings with garage may be constructed on any lot.

But regulations will provide that small guest sleeping quarters could be constructed.

Piers Island, in Satellite Channel just north of Swartz Bay, was sold last year to Gulf Resorts Ltd. by Mrs. Margaret Harvey of Victoria, whose late husband's family had owned the island for the past 50 years.

Principals of the purchasing company are Vancouver businessman Jack Bell and Vancouver contractor John W. G. MacKenzie. Victoria realtor Fraser Biscoe is agent for the project.

Subdivision plans have allowed for construction of a ferry wharf at some future date. It is thought island residents may seek to have the Salt Spring Island ferry from Swartz Bay call in at the island during summer months.

Sheltered Boat Basin

In the westerly portion of the island there is a large cleared area which is approximately at the level of high tide water. At nominal cost an area could be excavated to provide a sheltered boat basin. Similarly, at a nominal cost, a further excavation could be made for a salt water swimming pool.

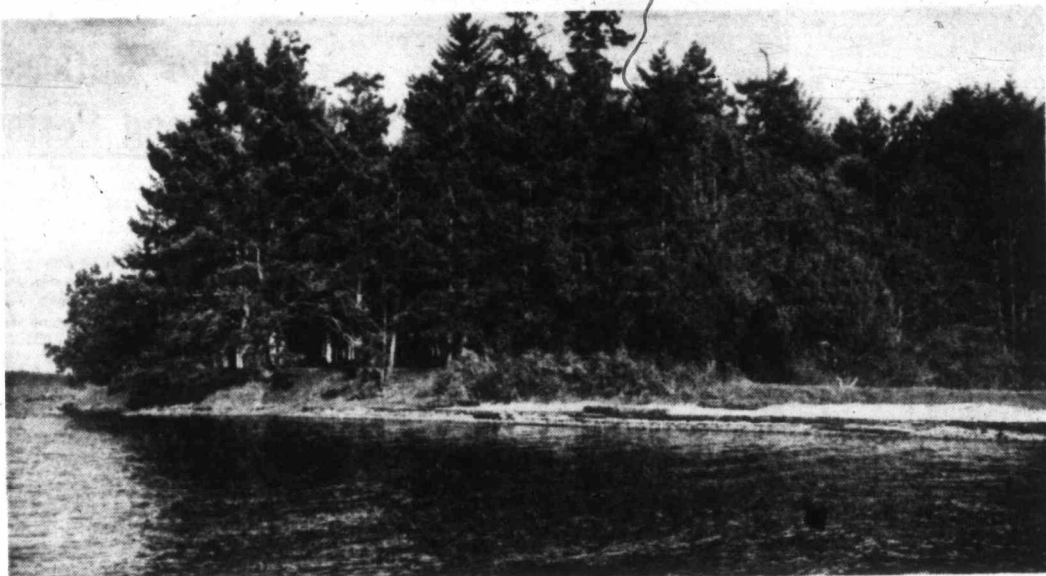

The developers are making every effort to keep the costs of the lots down. That is the reason they plan to turn the central part of the island over to an owners' group rather than develop it themselves. To carry out an all-embracing program would price the lots completely out of range of the very people it is hoped to see benefit by the development.

However, over the years, by competent management of the company controlling the central portion, it is believed all proposals suggested could be carried out on a progressive basis which would suit the property owners.

The B.C. Electric has tentatively indicated it is prepared to carry out an installation provided about $3,000 can be guaranteed annually. This would mean about $30 a lot annually.

The whole project will enable an average wage earner to live like a millionaire on an island of his own among the beautiful and fascinating Gulf of Georgia islands, many of which are owned by millionaires.

"We feel that with the high prices asked for most waterfront lots, a large number of Vancouver and Victoria families are denied their own seafaring summer homes," Mr. MacKenzie said.

Piers Island is within two miles of Princess Margaret Island, which last year was given by the province of British Columbia to Princess Margaret and then designated as a marine park.

The island is believed to have been named after Henry Piers, surgeon of the naval vessel HMS Satellite, under command of Capt. Prevost, which cruised those waters in the 1850s.

It is briefly recorded that Indians lived there many years and paddled across to Knapp Island, a long rifle shot away, to trade with the Hudson's Bay station serviced by the old Beaver.

About the turn of the century Piers Island appeared in the news when Sir Edward Clive Oldhall Long Phillips-Wolley, who had visited this coast previously, bought the island with its white shell beaches, lovely groves of arbutus and dogwood, and lofty virgin forests.

He proceeded to build an estate on the island—a beautiful home, gardens, orchards and farm buildings.

He moved to Victoria in 1908 and sold the island to Lt.-Col. J. S. Harvey of Victoria, who with his family moved to the island and lived there until 1912.

The island was leased to various parties, mostly for sheep-raising, during the next 20 years.

Then came the mass arrests of Sons of Freedom Doukhobors.

Federal authorities took over the island as a penal colony and there were 546 convicted Doukhobors and their 365 children to be taken care of by the government. The children were placed in various institutions, but the parents were hustled into hastily-built barracks on the island. Fourteen-foot-high fences separated males from females during their three-year terms. A few years ago the barracks and other deserted buildings were sold and removed from Piers Island and today little remains to show that a penitentiary ever existed there.

Use Logic In Siting The Utilities

Why not be logical about the placement of utilities?

There is no need to be hampered by tradition and place washers and dryers in the kitchen.

Bedroom linen, bathroom linen and the clothes that are changed in that area of the house make up the great bulk of the laundry, so why not have the facilities in the hall near the bedrooms or in the bathroom itself?

Handsome fir plywood cabinets with folding doors may be set into cavernous old bathrooms or wide corridors to make a central location

Huge Building Program Set

Millions Earmarked

More than 1,500 single-dwelling homes, apartment houses and semi-detached homes costing more than $10,000,000 will be built in the Greater Victoria metropolitan area this year and about 60 per cent of these will be financed under the National Housing Act.

That is the prediction of C. J. Dowling, Victoria manager of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation which administers the NHA.

He expects that 1959 will be as big a year as 1958, which was a record home-building year in this area.

CMHC figures disclose there were 1,542 homes started under construction in 1958 in the Victoria metropolitan area compared to 1,053 in 1957.

Saanich was far ahead in home building starts last year with 788 homes under construction. Victoria had 268.

Oak Bay 230, Esquimalt 118, Sidney 31, and N. Saanich 39. Mr. Dowling, who has managed the Victoria office which supervises all Vancouver Island for three years, says about 60 per cent of all houses are financed under NHA and the percentage is climbing every year.

The NHA makes it possible for Mr. Average Wage Earner to own his own home and these include detached houses, semi-detached dwellings and duplexes. In fact, the greater part of the building industry revolves around the act.

The easiest way to own one's own home over a period of years is through NHA.

The advantages are many and include a loan equal to a proportion of the value of the home, a moderate rate of interest (6 per cent maximum), a repayment plan over 25 or 30 years, and convenient monthly payments.

Under the provisions of NHA certain recognized lenders, including chartered banks, insurance companies, trust and loan companies, are authorized to lend money to builders, or to individuals planning to build homes for themselves or to hire such work done.

Basically to qualify for an NHA loan one must have the plans of a house that meet NHA specifications, a sufficient down payment to give a certain equity in the home, and the income considered adequate to meet loan obligations. (Mortgage charges for principal and interest plus taxes should not exceed 27 per cent of the applicant's annual income.)

In Victoria there is an abundance of fine older homes which are bargains for home seekers. This one at 510 Trutch Street was built during an era where labor was cheaper and nothing was spared to make it a quality home. National Housing Act home improvement loans provide ready cash to renovate these older homes.

Quality Workmanship

Older Houses Fine Bargains

Some of the best bargains in real estate today are the older homes which are usually in established neighborhoods where property values are sure to remain stable.

One of the big advantages of older homes is that they were usually built during a lower cost era and this shows up in the larger rooms and quality construction.

These grand old homes were mostly designed for large families, and today the large family is again becoming the vogue.

Chair rails, high baseboards, wainscoting and dark wood of the older homes are all features that withstand wear and family use, and anyone who is satisfied with the old style can usually buy a better-quality older home.

Today insulation of older homes is no problem and the quality construction and larger rooms make for easy renovation and redesign.

And, under the National Housing Act home improvement loan plan administered by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, almost anyone can afford to remodel with its already landscaped garden.

The authority may guarantee through a bank or other authorized installment lender a loan of up to $4,000 on a one-family dwelling to cover the cost of remodeling.

These NHA home improvement loans cover the cost of labor, materials and equipment for alterations, repairs or additions which are intended to be permanently installed or built in.

Included are new construction work, repair of damage, demolition or moving of buildings on the property, installation of heating systems, rewiring or plumbing improvements.

They can cover the entire cost of built-in ranges, refrigerators, and garbage disposal units, but not home laundry equipment.

They include wall-to-wall carpets, painting and decorating, awnings and insulating glass windows.

A home improvement loan can even be obtained to cover the cost of site improvements such things as blacktop driveways, fences, septic tanks or public sewer connections, curbs, sidewalks, patios, trees and shrubs and any landscaping of a permanent nature.

Such loans are available today without difficulty from any bank at 6 per cent interest, the same rate charged for NHA mortgages. The procedure, however, is a lot simpler. Inspections are not normally required and there is rarely more than a few days' delay.

NHA home improvement loans are secured by personal promissory note, a loan arranged strictly between the home owner and the bank.

At the time of making an NHA home improvement loan the lender is required to collect from the borrower an insurance fee equal to 1 per cent of the amount of the loan. The fee is remitted to CMHC by the lender.

Loans are repayable in monthly installments, together with interest, in not more than 10 years.

Existing mortgages or other home improvement loans on the property do not interfere with the granting of a new loan, provided the total amount of these obligations will not exceed the estimated value of the property.

When the bank has approved an application for an NHA improvement loan, the owner receives the amount of the loan in full... either before, during, or after the work is completed, depending on the arrangements made.

Blue Entices Flying Pests

Night flying insects are normally attracted to bright light sources.

Research has proved that it is the blue part of the light that attracts these insects, but now colored filters built into these light sources absorb the blues and make the light almost invisible to insects.

Yellow lamps are used for this purpose because they eliminate most of the light the insects see.

If floodlighting is used, the floodlamps should be placed far enough away from where people congregate so the bugs will not fall where there are people. Where fluorescent lighting is used outdoors, gold fluorescent tubes are least attractive to night-flying insects.

He Could Have Victoria —But Wanted Potatoes

Most of the land around Victoria was turned down by a settler because he thought the land was not good enough to grow potatoes.

Settler John Coles told the Royal Colonial Institute in London in 1887:

"To show . . . how foolish some people are who get opportunities, when I landed I was offered the option of taking up the greater part of the land of Fort Victoria. But I refused it because I did not think the ground 'good enough for growing potatoes.'"

Never again will property in this area be available at such bargain prices. "Ask anyone" the real estate men of the SAANICH PENINSULA. Artists' drawing shows part of new $1,000,000 subdivision now under construction on old Copley property in Saanich.

Copley Estate

Own Sewage Plant

Old Saanich Property To House 300 Families

A $1,000,000 subdivision, which will include 300 lots and a four-acre artificial lake which may be stocked with fish, is now under construction on the old Copley property in Saanich.

It will be the first subdivision in Saanich with its own sewage disposal plant to take care of the entire area.

SCHOOLS, SHOPS

The new subdivision to be named Northridge Terrace will include a site for a school to include all grades and a shopping area as well as two children's playgrounds in zoned areas.

Subdividers are Dick Lipsey and Gordon Rolston of Lipsey-Rolston Development Co. Ltd. of Victoria and agent is Frank A. Martin Agencies Ltd., which will offer a complete real estate, drafting and building plan.

OFF DRAWING BOARD

Plans for the 115-acre development are now off the drawing boards and half of the proposed roadwork is now under construction.

Sale of lots at a price from $1,200 up is expected to start almost immediately. The property is beautifully treed and nearly all the lots will have a gentle slope and view. Water front lots will be available on the lake and there will also be a public swimming and boating beach on the lake.

DORMANT LAND

The property is now dormant land adjacent to Wilkinson Road and runs from Carey Road between Mann Avenue and Judah Avenue on the south.

It is the biggest subdivision now underway in Greater Victoria and will include storm sewers, sewers, curbs and gutters.

EASIER TAXES

The developers point out that although prices for the lots may appear to be excessive in comparison to less attractive areas, all improvements will be paid for in the price of the lot so taxes should be more favorable than anywhere else in the Greater Victoria area.

There will be a completely surfaced road in from the Patricia Bay Highway across Vanalman to the centre of the subdivision and there will also be access from Wilkinson Road, Carey Road, West Saanich Road and Mann Ave.

Colquitz Creek runs through the subdivision and although it has recently been found pure enough to drink, a filter plant will be installed as a safety precaution.

DIFFERENT DESIGNS

All homes to be built in the new subdivision will have to be of an approved type and no house of similar design will be allowed within four houses of another. Houses must have at least 1,000 square feet of floor space.

Frank Martin Agencies reports it has hundreds of house designs to choose from and unlimited National Housing Act and other conventional loan money available.

STREET LIGHTING

Controlled street lighting will be installed throughout the subdivision. It is expected it will take about three years to complete the subdivision.

Phones, Meters, Licences —Numbers in Thousands!

Change to Oil Heat High in Desirability

Living modern today means many things, but one of the first things in the minds of homeowners is a change to automatic home heating.

In Victoria the predominant trend in automatic home heating is to oil heat. Gas in natural and economic form has not yet reached the Island, so only a moderate amount is sold for home heating.

When considering a change to automatic heating a good deal of thought must be given to the size, structure, age and location of the home.

SURVEY FIRST

Proper installation depends on a competent heating engineer first making a complete survey of the heating requirements.

The furnace must be of correct heat output to suit the BTU requirements of the home. In modern well-insulated homes where the heat requirement is down, one must consider the size of the fan used so that a proper amount of air will be moved over the furnace up into the house and thereby carry enough heat to required areas.

Biggest oil user in an automatic system is not the burner, but the filter system of the return air. If filters are allowed to clog up, the air for carrying heat away from the furnace cannot pass through and this causes the furnace to get too hot and the heat passes up the chimney instead of into the home.

Just Like Another Room

Garden Lights 'Enlarge' Home

Mere Flick of Switch
Turns Night Into Day

Outdoor lighting can double or triple the size of a home—and with small expense and effort.

With outdoor lighting a family can enjoy a whole new range of outdoor activities in evening when the family is together and a yard, garden or terrace can be made just like another room in the home.

It helps make a home and garden the show place of the neighborhood after dark and helps a family get more living value out of the home and land in which it has invested.

ANY AMOUNT

With an increasing choice of equipment, garden lighting can be done economically, generously, or in a don't-spare-the-cheque-book fashion.

One of the most important reasons for lighting a garden is the safety and protection such lighting can give. There is no reason for stumbling around in the dark, and by snapping on garden lights one can make a quick inspection of the grounds.

Usually if there are any prowlers, a floodlight is enough to send them on their way.

Outdoor lighting provides the opportunity to enjoy favorite garden spots and the blessing of the darkness is that less attractive areas can be concealed by shadows.

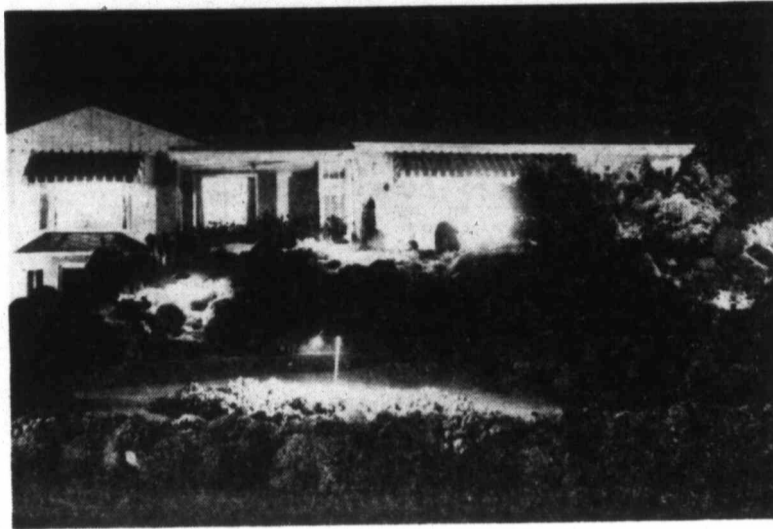

Aside from lighting advantages, outdoor weatherproof convenience outlets make it easy to connect hedge-trimmers or any other electrical equipment such as barbecue rotisseries.

It is better for the circuit serving the outdoor lighting to be exclusively for that purpose, but if only a small amount of seasonal lighting is required it is possible to plug into the existing circuits in the garage or house, being careful not to overload any household circuit. The average lighting circuit can carry only about 1,500 watts.

CORD CARE

Do not lead cords through window or door openings where they are subject to damage from closing doors or windows.

One way to overcome this problem is to insert a wood panel the width of a window and about two or three inches high and then bring the cord through a hole in the board. Indoor-type extension cords should never be used for garden lighting. Cords for garden lighting must be weatherproof and all the connections moistureproof.

BEWARE DEW

Experiment with garden fixtures only in a dry garden. Dew or any other moisture must be guarded against in handling electrical equipment.

Remember to turn off the electricity when replacing a bulb.

DON'T OVERDO

Avoid whitewashing an entire area with light. The result may be flat and monotonous.

Results will be made more pleasant and satisfying by highlighting or silhouetting lighting of trees and choice parts of the garden.

Always remember that the garden by night is not supposed to duplicate the garden by day, but should rather present a completely different, but very alluring, appearance at night.

WHAT COLOR?

All types of bulbs may be used, depending on where and what it is sought to light.

Usually white light looks best in flower beds. Nature does the color to perfection there. On the other hand, sometimes fountains, pools and trellises look entrancing with colored lights.

Anything from a Christmas-tree-size bulb to a 150-watt projector-type lamp may be appropriate. The projector light with the built-in reflector is ideal for garden use and the brackets are adjustable to different angles.

WON'T BREAK

It is made of heavy glass and won't break when exposed to rain or other inclement weather, and it is available in five colors.

Green can be attractive, yellow is very pleasing directed up through willow trees, pink can create a soft warm atmosphere, and red is extremely effective on red brick or on arbutus trees. The blue lamp can be used to simulate a moonlight atmosphere in the garden.

In planning garden lighting the prime rule is to keep the light out of the viewer's eyes and the neighbor's, too.

Show Place At Little Cost

Land Registry Keeps Details Of All Deals

The whole history of land development on Vancouver Island since the colonial days of the province may be found at the provincial government's land registry office in the old Bastion Street courthouse.

The land office is the clearing house for the real estate business and keeps complete records of all land transactions.

In its vaults, old title deeds are stored in rows of filing boxes, stacked 12 feet high. The boxes, numbering in the thousands, each contain records of names of former owners and purchasers of private property as well as wills dealing with the conveyance of land.

In addition, the office keeps more than 30,000 maps of individual properties showing their boundaries, easements if any, and other technical details.

Painting's Job For All Family

Nothing can make a house more livable than a good slick painting job, and today painting the home has become a job for the whole family.

And any reliable paint firm is ever ready with free advice on materials and color schemes.

When painting exteriors do not expect good results unless all surfaces to be painted are thoroughly prepared.

If the surface is in paintable condition, thoroughly wash. Where alligating or cracking is present the paint should be removed back to the wood by the use of paint and varnish remover, or burning with a blowtorch, and scraping.

It is best to call on the paint dealer for free advice if there is any doubt whatsoever that the surface is in the best condition for painting. It will save you and him trouble later on.

All major paint companies are today making better paint than ever before and rarely, if ever, is a paint failure caused by poor-quality paints, if the painter is dealing with a well-known paint product.

Too few people read the directions on a can of paint. If directions are followed to the letter, there will be no difficulty.

JUST ONE POUND AN ACRE —WITH STRING ATTACHED

Prospective Victoria home-builders who look with favor on choice Hudson's Bay Company land, some of which is now being subdivided in the Shelbourne-Cedar Hill Cross Road area, are just about a century too late to buy it at a real bargain—one pound an acre.

The land was offered to colonists at that price after the company was granted Vancouver Island with the provision it encourage colonization.

But there was another "price" upon the property that would discourage buyers today. For every 100 acres purchased, a colonist had to bring five single men or three married couples to the Island at his own expense.

Bing Crosby's Home

Want Castle? Here They Are

Would you like to buy Bing Crosby's home on Hayden Lake in Idaho for $95,000? Or maybe your tastes lean more to Craigrownie Castle in the British Isles which can be purchased at a fraction of its value, or to 18,000 acres and a completely equipped dude ranch in Wyoming.

Maybe you are interested in a Japanese imperial palace or an alpine chalet.

You name it and Pemberton Holmes Ltd. in Victoria, as agents for Previews Inc., can turn it up for you in a matter of minutes.

"We can deal in any real estate anywhere in the world so long as it is outside the Iron Curtain," Philip Holmes said. He said main features of the Victoria company as agent for Previews Inc. is to encourage other agents to list with Previews, so in fact all Victoria firms have some connection with this giant world-wide clearing house for real estate. And Vancouver Island has not been left out of the listings, full details of which are listed with 20,000 co-operating brokers in almost every country in the world.

A few of the Vancouver Island listings include a 174-acre hunting and fishing paradise near Tofino for $90,000; a $36,500 delightful waterfront home near Metchosin; acreage on Barkley Sound for $27,000, and a 12-room residence on Saanich Inlet for $110,000.

These Island properties, through Previews Inc., are attractively pictured and described in brochures which are sent to agents all over the world. They are regularly advertised in leading publications and appear in the special Previews catalogue.

Previews does not exactly sell the houses, castles, palaces and other properties. It promotes them through its wide-scale advertising mediums and branch offices in many parts of the world.

Once a customer is located he is referred to some local real estate operator who arranges the sale. Previews accepts a proportionate share of the sales fee. Thus it provides a national or international field of public promotion for the small operator with a piece of property requiring more than the local advertising scope.

Previews frankly isn't interested in the penny stocks of the real estate market. Only residences and other properties in the out-of-the-ordinary field can justify the generous treatment it gives them.

Average asking price for Previews properties is about $47,500, but it has properties from several thousand dollars to $1,500,000.

Sprawl Development Builds Trouble for Future Years

Real estate men in Victoria have gone on record against the sprawl type of subdivision and in favor of orderly subdivision development spreading out from the city as sewers, roads, schools and other facilities become available.

"The owner of a sprawl development home is not a rural-minded owner," the real estate boards say. "Rather he is a misplace urbanite. He doesn't want land to care for, but he may like to have fields and woods close by—w-h-o wouldn't?"

"In fact, the sprawl development owner is leeching on his truly rural neighbors," the board points out.

QUICK PROFIT

Realtors describe sprawl as an entirely selfish subdivision—the indiscriminate, wanton use of land to meet the demand of a building lot shortage for a quick profit.

They point out the danger is that rural areas become infested with isolated urban lot groups, the owners of which, though originally content with the minimum of services, soon become discontented with the lack of roads, sidewalks, sewers, infrequency of garbage collection and so on.

This, realtors point out, is the point where municipal financial trouble begins, and the cost is, of course, passed on to the taxpayers—not just the offenders but to all.

The Real Estate Board of Victoria, representing more than 90 per cent of the licensed real estate agents in Greater Victoria, recently said an emphatic "yes" to the control of subdivision.

But the board didn't say precisely what kind of control it favored, believing that was an administrative problem of the area involved.

Actually sprawl is a country-wide problem. It is not just a little local storm in a teacup.

RESOLUTION CITED

At the 1958 national conference of the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards, the following resolution was passed:

"Whereas the association is apprehensive of the high costs of extending urban services, including schools, particularly when such costs become excessive as a result of proper planning; and whereas the preamble of the Code of Ethics of the association says: 'Under all is the land. Upon its wise utilization the widely allocated ownership depend the survival and the growth of free institutions and of our civilization...'

SAANICH PROBLEM

The sprawl problem is country-wide, but in this area it is particularly worrisome in outer Saanich and in the unorganized districts outside the four-mile circle.

LOGICAL CENTRES

All this does not mean that new centres cannot develop in the meantime, logical centres with a commercial and school core, perhaps like Royal Oak and Cordova Bay in which development is planned and zealously cared for by the occupants, one realtor explained.

"Nor does it mean prohibition for those who wish to live rural, with reasonable acreage and privacy.

Best on Continent

The provincial land registry office in Victoria is recognized as operating the most efficient system of registering lands in North America. Inside of two minutes a person can find out who owns a lot and whether it is free of mortgages.

Wins Regional Awards

City Designer Honored

Victoria home-builder Bruce A. Cooke, who also designs the homes he builds, has won two 1959 awards in the regional contest of the Canadian Housing Design Council.

He won a similar award last year.

This year, Mr. Cooke took top honors in the 1,150 to 1,500-square-foot class for a three-level home overlooking Cordova Bay at 5069 Lochside Drive and selling in the $14,000 to $15,000 range.

He also won top honors in the under-1,150 square-foot class with a unique split level home at 1081 McBriar, which is in the $11,000 to $12,000 price range.

Mr. Cooke was the only winner on Vancouver Island this year, with the other four B.C. awards going to mainland home builders.

Judges said they were particularly pleased to note the variety and excellent quality of plans submitted, and the number of types of houses put forward for judging, the total including two-storey, tri-level, split level, slab on grade and houses with full basements.

In reaching their conclusions, the judges considered siting, good proportions, simplicity in treatment of appropriate materials, general shape of the buildings, efficient use of space, convenience in relationship of rooms and the placing of furniture.

The Canadian Housing Design Council was formed three years ago by a group of industrialists, architects, builders and consumers for the purpose of promoting better design in the field of small and moderate-sized homes.

Through a program of regional and national awards, CHDC gave builders for the first time the incentive of official recognition for any efforts they might make to improve the lagging design standards of speculative housing.

When it comes to residential sites in a relaxing and pleasant atmosphere, all eyes turn to Sidney and the North Saanich Peninsula.

Here is a district of solitude and beauty, a district that appeals to the hard-working businessman and those in the sunset years of life. A relaxing place where one may rest and play.

This scenic tip of the Saanich Peninsula, with its scores of little bays, peninsulas and unlimited seascapes, has in recent years been a magnet for people from all walks of life—those with big incomes and those who have to commute to work in Victoria or Vancouver.

Recently the trend has been to the expansion of residential properties and there has been great activity in the buying of land for housing sites and in buying already established homes.

There is very little waterfront property available, and what there is is expensive. There is a 100-home VLA subdivision under construction on Beacon Avenue in Sidney and a 58-home subdivision is now being developed south of Sidney.

Taxes are comparatively low in the Sidney and North Saanich area and transportation is adequate by bus or car, just 30 minutes from the heart of Victoria, and by air just 30 minutes from the mainland.

There is a good water system in Sidney and the Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce is now investigating every possible avenue to speed up a water supply for the whole North Saanich peninsula.

Sidney district provides several good yachting basins which make ideal takeoff points for a holiday in the Gulf Islands.

Next year the Sidney district will get a big lift when the government starts operating its fast Saanich Peninsula mainland ferry service from the Sidney docks which are now used by Washington State ferries for its Sidney-Anacortes service.

With the adjacent Patricia Bay airport, Sidney will undoubtedly become the transportation hub of Vancouver Island and can look for many more prosperous years.

Hemlock Has Many Uses

Pacific Coast hemlock possesses characteristics which rank it among the foremost of commercial woods. Bought and sold as Pacific Coast hemlock, it is also known as Western hemlock or West Coast hemlock.

Since the wood is fine textured, straight grained, stiff and easily worked, it is readily adapted to many different uses. Distinguished for its strength, it possesses exceptionally good gluing properties.

Multiple Listings Spreads Wings

Province-Wide Link-Up Soon

2,500 Salesmen at Your Command

Victoria Joins In

Flushed with the thrill of a record $10,000,000 real estate year, the Multiple Listings Bureau of the Real Estate Board of Victoria embarks on a new era next month when it joins in the new province-wide B.C. Multiple Listings Service.

A central office is now being established in Vancouver to act as a clearing house for more than 2,500 brokers and salesmen from every nook and cranny of British Columbia.

All of them are members of the B.C. Association of Real Estate Boards, whose members account for 80 per cent of all real estate sold in the province.

ALL WILL JUMP

It now means that when a Victorian wants to sell or buy a house anywhere in British Columbia he need only snap his fingers and 2,500 salesmen will jump.

And the Victoria Multiple Listings Bureau ranks third in all Canada with a record of 42.8 per cent on the ratio of sales to listings.

Last year the Victoria bureau hit an all-time sales high of $10,000,000 and this year is well on its way to establishing that figure at $1,000,000 a month in sales.

UP, UP, UP

With its 52 member firms and 407 salesmen the Victoria bureau has handled 8,500 different listings since it was organized Feb. 14, 1955. In that first year its sales amounted to $2,000,000 and have steadily increased since.

Mrs. Real Estate of Victoria is Mrs. Catherine Godfrey who has managed the bureau since its inception and is also secretary of the Real Estate Board of Victoria.

L. M. Corke is president of the Multiple Listings Bureau, and E. Frank Burton is vice-president. Directors are F. N. Cabellu, L. E. Kirk, C. F. Campbell and B. Russell Ker.

Key to the bureau's operation is swift, efficient blanketing of the market.

CATHERINE GODFREY
Mrs. Real Estate

ing of a property for sale a card with a picture of the property and all particulars has been distributed to every one of the 407 salesmen connected with the bureau, and that figure will be more than 2,500 salesmen when the B.C. service starts operation.

The Multiple Listings Bureau tells vendors they may still list property with a realtor of their choice and all negotiations and appointments will be arranged through his office only.

A careful evaluation of the property is made to establish its true sales value. Each Wednesday groups of six to 15 salesmen tour marketed homes with the owners' approval and offer appraisals. Through joint study a recommendation for a fair selling price is arrived at. An advertising program bigger than many individual realtors can afford is in effect while the home is on the market.

Sellers are assured of complete market coverage, highest price due to competition as well as the quickest possible and safest deal.

Speed is one of the multiple listing's biggest selling points.

Purchasers are told multiple listing is the most effective way to buy because the multiple listing salesman has a greater selection of homes to offer.

From the point of view of a real estate board such as the one that operates in Victoria, multiple listing service promotes co-operation and goodwill among member firms through the necessity to work together on the same properties.

STATE OF MICHIGAN BROKE NINE OTHERS DEEP IN RED

(From AP and UPI)

LANSING, Mich.—The State of Michigan, which has been on the verge of bankruptcy for months, yesterday had little doubt that "collapse day" had arrived.

And an Associated Press survey showed that nine other states are in almost the same boat.

A report showed Michigan will have only $22,500,000 to meet past due and accruing obligations, which will total $139,000,000 by May 15.

Governor G. Mennen Williams and his cabinet Wednesday ordered an immediate halt to all payments from the state's general fund, except for $3,500,000 to be distributed to counties for relief to the needy.

The order means that the state will not meet its payrolls until at least May 15. Approximately 28,000 state employees will not be paid as scheduled May 7.

$110,000,000 Deficit

Williams, a Democrat, and the Republican-controlled Senate are stalemated on how to meet an immediate shortage of cash and a growing deficit that may reach $110,000,000 by June 30.

Senate Republicans, who have a 22-12 edge, refused Tuesday night to cash securities in a $50,000,000 veterans' trust fund to ease an immediate cash crisis—unless they tack on to the bill a one-cent addition to the state's three-cent sales tax.

The state has been seeking means to revive from the cash crisis since early in the current legislative session, which began early in January.

Tuesday, when a plan to mortgage the state's $50,000,000 veterans' trust fund failed, legislators asked for an up-to-the-minute account of the funds available to the state to meet its many obligations. The $22,500,000 figure was their answer.

The state administrative board yesterday set up a priority list for state funds. Welfare payments came first, schools second and payrolls third.

The administrative board said public assistance to the blind, the crippled, the deserted, the helpless, the aged and the destitute would be maintained by state officials "as long as they humanly can."

School districts which already borrowed nearly $70,000,000 against state aid payments, were given next priority as the board announced, "we will not abandon the school children of Michigan."

The situation was similar in other states. "I feel sorry for the next governor," said a veteran Iowa legislator as he considered his state's finances recently. "He'll be like Mother Hubbard when he takes a look in the cupboard, because it's really going to be bare."

Wettest April Ever

This is the wettest April in 70 years of recording at the Victoria weather office. So far this month, 3.04 inches of rain have drenched the area. The previous record was set in 1901 with 3.01 inches. Despite a fall of 1.72 inches in 30 hours up to 11 p.m. last night, police said they had received no reports of flooding of basements or streets. Weatherman William Mackie forecasts some relief today but skies will remain cloudy.

Labor Issues Mass Call For 'Pullback'

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain's entire labor movement Wednesday night joined in a call for military disengagement starting with a nuclear-free zone in central Europe. The appeal was issued in the form of a May Day manifesto sponsored by the Labor party, the co-operative movement and the Trades Union Congress.

Military disengagement, it said, would "relieve the danger of a sudden and spontaneous conflict."

Appeal Case Of Sommers Nearing End

OTTAWA (UPI)—The Sommers-Gray Supreme Court of Canada appeal against bribery and conspiracy charges neared its end yesterday.

Lawyers argued over the Criminal Code definition of "official" to see if former B.C. lands and forests minister Robert Sommers had been charged under the proper section of the code.

New View Shows Change for Better

'Terrifying' Need

U.S. to Strike First Blow

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—A congressional study group said Wednesday it might be necessary to warn the Soviet Union that the U.S. reserved the right to strike the first blow if the Berlin situation called for action.

Of Carrier

Prince Takes Helm

WEYMOUTH, England (UPI)—Ten-year-old Prince Charles took the wheel of one of Britain's mightiest warships afloat yesterday.

He steered the 43,000-ton aircraft carrier HMS Eagle on a steady 153-degree course at a steady 25 knots—for one minute.

"The prince and his mother, Queen Elizabeth, spent four hours touring the Eagle on a short cruise in and out of Weymouth harbor.

"Jolly good," said a naval officer of Charles' steering. "Have you steered the royal yacht?"

"Yes," said the prince.

"This is a terrifying contingency," the group said, "but conceding the first blow with the certain destruction of major cities is even more appalling. Russia served with notice that we will risk war if necessary is the greatest deterrent to war."

The statement said it was a reasonable assumption that the Berlin crisis would not develop into war, but the danger of war was present and any attempt to end the West's access to Berlin must be resisted.

It noted that a plan was in existence to break any blockade that might be erected at checkpoints if the Soviet Union turned over its control responsibilities to East German authorities.

"There is no doubt that if Russia reinforced that blockade we could be stopped," the congressmen said. "There is some thinking that at this point we must consider the next phase, which would be atomic attack. . . . We are prepared to risk total war when we break the blockade."

'No Accident'—Collector

'Devil Face' Paper Money Re-Released

Ten million Canadian bank notes which show a "devil's face" in the Queen's hair have been released by the federal government—on the eve of Queen Elizabeth's visit to Canada.

Allan Klenman, past president of the Victoria Numismatic Society and a director of the Canadian Numismatic Association, said yesterday the first of the notes have already reached Victoria banks.

The notes were withdrawn from circulation in 1956 when the disfigurement was generally noticed. The bills were printed in 1954.

The design of the Queen's portrait includes what appears to be a satyr's head close to her left ear. The plates have since been altered.

Mr. Klenman said the Canadian Numismatic Association will protest the release of the notes. He suggested the design was "no accident."

"Engraving companies brought many engravings from Europe at the end of the war and who knows what thoughts they harbor."

He suggested those responsible might be trying to "put across the subtle message to the public."

Release of the bills will wipe out the value of existing bills, which have been sold for $1.50 each by dealers.

In 1921, bills issued in Germany included an unscheduled vampire bat in the design, sucking the lifeblood of the working classes.

Many got into trouble by spending more money than they received, making up the difference by dipping into surplus monies and by borrowing. Others are recession victims: Last year's business decline cut their income below their outlays.

Michigan, among the most troubled states, was brought to its current crisis by multiple factors. Generally, overspending and the recession, complicated by political bickering, has been held responsible.

For three years Michigan spent more than it took in. When a modest $25,000,000 surplus evaporated, deficit financing followed. The deficit could reach $110,000,000 by June 30, and the state also has nearly $213,000,000 in general obligation bonds outstanding.

The economic decline, which brought a high rate of unemployment to such major industrial centres as Detroit, cut into state revenue at a time when it was already insufficient.

The Republican-dominated legislature blames Democratic Governor G. Mennen Williams for the fiscal impasse. "The governor always comes in with a budget increasing services everywhere," complains state Senator Charles Prescott. "If he's signed a tax bill, I don't recall it."

Williams and the legislature were deadlocked on a tax program. He wants a personal income tax and an income tax on business. The Republicans insist on an increase in the sales tax.

Meanwhile, the governor used money appropriated for

Rainy Day Fund Down

Like Michigan and many other states Iowa has fiscal troubles. Its treasury is solvent. But a $100,000,000 "rainy day fund" that was built up during the Second World War is down to $20,000,000. Living, like many another state, beyond its income, it has had to dip into this reserve.

An Associated Press survey of state financial problems indicates 10 of them deeply in debt or in imminent danger of going into the red. And 16 have some measure of financial difficulties that could become awkward.

colleges and universities to meet the state payroll, directing these institutions to borrow money. Then the banks cut off credit to the universities.

The governor next appealed to business and industry, which paid May and June taxes ahead of time but the situation still is critical.

Over-spending income while balancing the budget from reserve funds has created financial difficulties in California, New York, Washington, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Back in Michigan Williams has opposed any sales tax increase and has proposed instead a graduated personal income tax and a corporation profits tax to wipe out the deficit.

King Fisherman Weigh-In Stations Run from Sooke to Kelsey Bay

It isn't going to be difficult for anglers to enter their fish in the fifth annual Daily Colonist King Fisherman Contest, which starts tomorrow on a five-and-a-half month run which ends Oct. 15.

More than 70 weighing stations have already been lined up and 20 or 30 more will be added as soon as their season opens to blanket Vancouver Island from Sooke to Kelsey Bay.

There is no entry fee of any sort in what has become the largest fishing competition on the continent. All that is necessary is for anglers to weigh in their fish at one of the official weigh-in stations and see that the entry form is properly filled out and signed. This gives them the chance to win trophies and crests and, if they are Colonist subscribers at the time their catch was made, one of the dozens of prizes making up a prize list in excess of $3,000.

NO BEARING

All but five of the many valuable merchandise prizes are hidden-weight prizes. This means that the size of the fish entered has no bearing on deciding the prize-winners. Every fish entered means an extra chance to win a prize. Salmon must weigh five pounds or more and trout and small-mouth black bass one pound or more to be eligible.

Main prize this year is an expensive paid trip for two to the Mexican resort centre of Acapulco via Canadian Pacific Airlines. This includes a two-week stay at a resort hotel and two or three trips on a specially chartered boat for deep-sea fishing.

There are many other valuable prizes in the final hidden-weight draw. They include a 12-foot Feather Craft aluminum carport boat, an English-made Seachief outboard motor being donated by Edward Lipsett Ltd., and two Goodyear Trailmaker snow tires donated by the O.K. Tire Store, Hillside and Fifth.

FOR LADIES, TOO

And there is also a special prize for ladies, donated by the T. Eaton Co. Ltd., of a fitted Elizabeth Arden cosmetic case. All entries made from the first day of the contest to the last will be in the main hidden-weight draw.

In addition, there will be monthly hidden-weight prizes of tackle and camping equipment and a monthly award for distaff anglers from the T. Eaton Co.

At stake also in the summer-long competition are the exclusive King Fisherman Trophies and the Prince Crests. A trophy will be awarded to the angler entering the largest fish in each of the contest's five divisions—tyee, spring and coho salmon, trout and small-mouth black bass. In every case where the trophy is won by a non-resident, another trophy will be given to the resident entering the largest fish.

Twenty-five crests are awarded each month for the largest 25 fish in each division. An angler may win only one crest each year in the same division, but there is a special prize of $25 in cash for the first angler to win five different crests in one year.

Then there are five valuable merchandise prizes for the Colonist subscriber entering the largest fish in each division:

Tyee salmon—A made-to-measure suit of clothes donated by George Strath Ltd. Spring salmon—A Youngs town food disposal unit donated by W. R. Menzies & Co. Ltd.

Coho salmon—A three-horsepower Viking outboard motor donated by the T. Eaton Co. Ltd.

Trout—A Jeunro tent and two sleeping bags donated by Jeune Bros. of Victoria Ltd.

Bass—$100 worth of Imperial Oil Products donated by the Imperial Oil Co. Ltd.

Shamrocks' Kid Line Helps Trim Labatts

By JIM TAYLOR

There was plenty to laugh about in last night's Shrine lacrosse game, but Victoria Shamrocks' new "kid line" apparently wasn't in a kidding mood.

While Shamrocks and Nanaimo Labatts floundered on a slick and treacherous floor at Memorial Arena, young Tom Collett coolly fired three goals to pace the Irish to an 18-4 victory in the second annual benefit game.

This was supposed to be a preview of the opening game of the Inter-City Lacrosse League schedule, but any similarity between play last night and lacrosse as it meant to be played was purely coincidental.

TOO MANY PEOPLE?

A thin coat of moisture, covering the floor from end to end, took care of that. Apparently caused by excessive humidity, and the warmth generated by some 3,000 fans, the dampness made good lacrosse an impossibility.

From the start play was, of necessity, slowed down to almost a walk. To try any shifting or fast breaks was to invite a tumble, and tumble both teams did. At one point in the second quarter there were four players sprawled on the floor, and not one of them had been touched.

Play was finally called at 10:47 of the second quarter to allow Arena officials to go over the floor with sawdust. They did it twice, but there was little improvement until late in the game. The last part of the quarter, as well as the last half was played without any time stoppages, but the game still took 2½ hours.

SHAMROCKS SHINE

What lacrosse there was left the crowd favorably impressed with the 1959 Shamrocks, especially with the junior line of Collett, Jim McNeill and Jack Wilson.

Collett pulled the trigger.

but the three always worked well together and it was headsup play by McNeill that set him up for two goals.

Another Shamrock standout was veteran Al Gill, who scored twice and checked fiercely to win the Shrine award as the Shamrock's most valuable player. Norm Kowalyk won the Nanaimo award for getting a goal and an assist, the only two-point man on the club.

ROBBED BLIND

Bert Bertoia, robbed blind on several occasions by either Al Shuker or Fred Fulla, still scored twice and Jim McNulty got the other Shamrock goal. Terry Rodway, Ted Liebhach and Gogi Stewart scored one apiece for Labatts.

Play was finally called at 10:47 of the second quarter to allow Arena officials to go over the floor with sawdust. They did it twice, but there was little improvement until late in the game. The last part of the quarter, as well as the last half was played without any time stoppages, but the game still took 2½ hours.

Speaking Briefly

Old 'Double X' Broke Again

Jimmy Foxx, member of baseball's Hall of Fame and a three-time winner of the American League's most valuable player award, is broke again.

It was almost a year ago that the famed "Double X" was discovered destitute after earning more than $250,000 during a long and colorful career.

Shortly afterwards, Foxx got a job coaching Boston Red Sox's Minneapolis farm club. When Boston decided to train at Scottsdale, Ariz., this season, Foxx headed for nearby Phoenix. One month ago he received his release.

CHELSEA, England (AP)—Chelsea, English first division soccer team, Wednesday night defeated Belgrade, 1-0, in the first leg of a quarter-finals match in the European inter-city cups.

Low Burdette Hurls Fourth Straight Win

Low Burdette, usually a slow starter, became the major winning pitcher Wednesday as Milwaukee Braves spanked St. Louis Cardinals 9-3 to regain the National League lead.

Burdette posted his fourth victory without a defeat even though he gave up 11 hits. Milwaukee has won eight games, and Burdette can point to half of this total.

Milwaukee's win moved manager Fred Haney's crew into a slim percentage lead over Los Angeles Dodgers who dropped a 5-4 decision to Philadelphia Phillies.

Home runs by Hank Aaron, Billy Bruton, Johnny Logan and Wes Covington made Burdette's task an easier one.

Wally Post hit second and third home runs of the season as Philadelphia dropped Los Angeles in a 4-2 decision.

In other National League games, Pittsburgh used a home run by light-hitting Bill Mazeroski to edge San Francisco Giants 3-2 and Cincinnati wiped Chicago 18-8 with an 18-hit attack.

Frank Robinson, Roy McMillan and Gus Bell hammered home runs for Cincinnati who held a 100 lead after two innings. As a result, Cincinnati grabbed third place from San Francisco.

In the American League, New York Yankees finally reached the 500 mark with a 5-2 win over Chicago's flustered White Sox.

Bob Turley went the distance for the win and received home run support from Mickey Mantle, Hank Bauer and Moose Skowron, his fifth.

And Detroit Tigers came out of their shell to trounce Baltimore 7-1 in a game that was halted by rain four times before it was washed out after five innings. Frank Lary was the winner—the first Tiger pitcher to finish a game this season.

Bill for Litter-Droppers--$4,775

Vandals Cost You $4,300

Vandals, thieves and litter-droppers in city parks cost the taxpayers of Victoria nearly $10,000 last year.

That estimate was given to aldermen yesterday by parks administrator W. H. Warren. Parks committee had asked him how much vandalism and untidiness cost.

Mr. Warren's estimate included $2,500 for vandalism and $2,500 for cleaning up litter in Beacon Hill Park, $1,000 for vandalism and $1,400 for litter in small parks, $200 for vandalism and $650 for litter in Royal Athletic and Macdonald Parks, $500 for vandalism and $100 for litter on the boulevards, and $100 for vandalism and $125 for litter at Ross Bay Cemetery.

On top of that, he said, "outright thefts" accounted for about $400.

The $9,475 total is equal to nearly 17 cents for each man, woman and child in the city. It represents a small part of Victoria's park budget, but on the other hand, it stands up large beside the 38 cents a person which Saanich municipality spent last year as its total parks allocation.

Gibbs

'Giant Killer' Backed

Oak Bay Liberal MLA Archie Gibbs, nicknamed the "giant killer" by Liberals, may be a contender for the provincial Liberal leadership, which is being vacated by Art Laing.

"I will have to give it some serious thought," he said yesterday after Victoria Liberal MLA George Gregory said he would throw his support behind his colleague Mr. Gibbs.

Mr. Gregory, a Victoria lawyer, had himself been prominently mentioned as a leadership candidate, but yesterday he expressed doubt.

A leader's first task is to unite his followers, and those who urged me to run must recognize, as I do, that I am at the very least a controversial figure in the Liberal party," he said. "Willing though I would be to make substantial sacrifice if I thought it would be for the good of the Liberal party and the province it is dedicated to serve, I do not feel that I am the one who, at this time, could unite the party."

Liberal party leadership will be decided at a party convention in Vancouver May 15 and 16.

Mr. Gregory said Mr. Gibbs has a record of success at the polls unequalled by any other Liberal in B.C.

"He has never lost an election. In the general election of 1952 he achieved the impossible by defeating Herbert Anscomb."

Courthouse New-Look Considered

Victoria city's plan for a $4,245,000 eggshell-type auditorium and a city hall below the Cathedral Hill site has caused the provincial government to take a second look at proposed designs for a new Victoria courthouse, a public works spokesman said yesterday.

He said the second look was being taken to decide to what extent, if any, the courthouse plans might be changed to conform with the surroundings of the proposed new civic buildings.

Duncan Beer Snatcher Preyed on Any Table

DUNCAN—An Indian youth who "repeatedly" ran into a local beer parlor and downed glasses of beer from "any table" before he could be thrown out, police said, was fined $20 in court yesterday.

"You were deliberately defying the law," Magistrate A. C. Sutton told Louie Wilson, 18, a Cowichan Indian.

Police said Wilson was thrown out of the Troubadour Hotel several times before they were called and he was charged with being a minor in a beer parlor.

LOUIS CALLAN

HUGH SHANTZ

If Chamber of Commerce tourist trade group members will go about sporting tricorn hats like that worn by B.C. Legislature Speaker Hugh Shantz, Victoria policemen will do their bit to lure tourists by returning to "bobbies" helmets like that worn in an earlier day by Louis Callan, now a detective sergeant with the Victoria force.

Bobbies' Helmets Again

Police Willing To Be 'Fools' If Others Do

By TERRY HAMMOND
Victoria's policemen will "dress up and act like damn fools" in bobbies' helmets if members of the Victoria tourist trade group will walk the streets in "three-cornered hats, knee-breeks and wigs."

Lorne Shandley, president of the Victoria City Police Union, made this statement yesterday when advised that the tourist trade group may ask the police commission to put the men back in "bobbies' helmets."

QUESTIONNAIRE
Sam Lane, chairman of the tourist trade group, said a number of private citizens have recommended such a move in replying to a public questionnaire dealing with tourist attractions.

"If enough people believe this should be done we would be prepared to go to the police commission and ask for it," he said.

Police Commissioner William J. Hamilton said: "I've told them before I have no objection to it if it is a decent helmet, but we aren't going to push it down anybody's throat."

HONORARIUM
He said policemen might be willing to wear the helmets, last of which disappeared from city streets nine years ago, if they were given some "additional honorarium."

"But nobody has offered to pay them and we certainly can't."

He pointed out that the helmets are not suitable for motorcycle policemen, nor those who spend most of their duty hours in police vehicles.

LOSING CHARM
Mr. Lane said the re-adoption of the helmets might help to counter recent criticism that Victoria is losing its "charm."

He cited an article in a Bellingham newspaper which said the city is losing its "distinctive character" and becoming merely another place to go.

Bobbies' helmets used to be "one of the items of great interest to tourists," he said. "They made policemen imposing figures, easily recognized from a distance and were the epitome of distinction."

NOT ORNAMENTS
Said policemen's spokesman Shandley, "We are paid to be policemen and not paid as ornaments."

"The men would wear helmets if the tourist group went around in three-cornered hats, knee-breeks and wigs."

Police Station Assault Charged to City Man

A 20-year-old Victoria man testified in police court yesterday he was dragged face down into the police charge office by the hair and struck repeatedly in the face.

Larry Montgomery, 633 Cornwall, convicted of assaulting one police constable and charged with assaulting a second, said he was grabbed by the hair as he got out of the police wagon then "dragged into the charge office, face down."

He said he struggled to regain his feet in the charge office, but officers held him down, and finally turned him face down on the floor.

"They held my legs down and my arms and pulled my head back while I was struck more than a dozen blows in the face by Const. Burdys," Montgomery testified.

(Const. John Burdys is the policeman Montgomery was convicted of assaulting during a street disturbance at Yates and Douglas, April 18.)

SWINGING FISTS
Yesterday Const. Ferguson, the officer Montgomery is now charged with assaulting, testified the prisoner came out of the wagon "swinging his fists and shouting."

The prisoner continued to struggle inside the charge of the police, where four other constables and a desk sergeant were standing, the policeman said.

Const. Ferguson said he tried to grab the prisoner's flailing feet while he was being subdued. He said he got hold of one foot "and the other got me in the mouth."

COUNT MY TEETH
"I stood back to count my teeth," Const. Ferguson said. A cut in his lip was later closed with stitches at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Montgomery appeared in court, April 18, with a black eye, bruises on his face and patches of hair missing.

"How is it your face was not mashed to a pulp by all those blows?" city prosecutor T. P. O'Grady asked yesterday.

"I got the rhythm and rolled with the punches," Montgomery replied. "I counted each one... I was out for a bit..."

HAIR PULLED OUT
Under questioning by defence counsel James Proudfoot, Const. Ferguson said Montgomery could have suffered a bump over his eye and had patches of hair pulled out in the scuffle at the police station.

The case was remanded to Friday for judgment after Magistrate William Ostler said he wanted to consider the evidence.

Montgomery is also waiting sentence of the earlier assault conviction.

Counsel Says:

'Province Is Poorer' For Loss of Briggs

By IAN STREET

British Columbia is the poorer for not having H. Lee Briggs as general manager of the B.C. Power Commission, the Shrum royal commission was told here yesterday.

Mr. Briggs' counsel, Hugh McGivern, said in his summation at yesterday's windup hearings of the royal commission inquiring into operations of the publicly-owned utility.

1. Mr. Briggs' outburst, which resulted in his dismissal and subsequent appointment of the Shrum commission, "was the action of a man who with honest integrity felt he had no other alternative in the position which he found himself."

2. Under Mr. Briggs' administration the power commission became the fastest-growing public utility in Canada, with capital spending amounting to some $50,000,000 annually and operating accounts of about $15,000,000 a year.

3. Mr. Briggs' only reason for opposing the government's original refinancing plan was that it would cost power commission customers an extra $200,000 annually in interest charges.

4. Had the refinancing scheme proposed by the Shrum commission and later adopted by the government come to Mr. Briggs as general manager, "I suggest he would have accepted it as a reasonable proposition." The reason: additional interest charges amounted to about $34,000.

CO-OPERATED
"I ask you," Mr. McGivern told the royal commission, "to find Mr. Briggs was a capable and thorough general manager as testified to by Mr. Crosby (former power commission chairman T. H. Crosby) and at all times co-operated with members of the power commission and staff."

"And I ask you also to find Mr. Briggs as a person was a man of complete integrity as far as his concept of duty to the public utility in this province and particularly the operations of a publicly-owned utility."

LOSS TO PROVINCE
"This province is the poorer for not having Mr. Briggs as general manager of the power commission."

Mr. McGivern said in giving evidence before the royal commission that his client was motivated by only one thought: "that of presenting all facets of the operation of a public utility in this province and particularly the operations of a publicly-owned utility."

He said Mr. Briggs, at no time wished to make statements that were unfair or misleading, and asked that statements claimed by the B.C. Electric to be without proof "be accepted as expressions of personal opinion, if the royal commission wishes to investigate them."

Mr. McGivern said later, with regard to B.C. Electric criticism of Mr. Briggs' statements, "that poor relations existed between the two utilities, there was nothing in Mr. Briggs' contract which said he had to love the B.C. Electric."

MANY WRANGLES
"His job was one of trying to husband the interests of his own commission, and he probably had many a business wrangle with the B.C. Electric. If he didn't, I'd say, he should have."

Mr. McGivern said that throughout the entire body of evidence presented to the royal commission ran a thread of testimony that "working harmony existed between the general manager (Mr. Briggs) and members of the power commission."

In winding up the royal commission hearings, which began four months ago in Vancouver, chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum paid tribute to the "very conscientious and helpful" way in which Mr. Briggs presented his evidence.

"All I can say is that Mr. Briggs has helped us in our deliberations," the chairman said.

Shrum Won't Try To Please Anyone

Dr. Gordon Shrum yesterday reiterated his statement that the final report on the royal commission investigating into operation of the B.C. Power Commission won't be completed until late July.

At the close of hearings, which lasted four months, Dr. Shrum said here yesterday: "I am thoroughly confident in predicting the final report of this commission won't please everybody. The commission won't try to please anybody. We're going to make comments as we see them."

Commissioner John Dunsmauir said: "Unlike the chairman, I'm hopeful that the report will please the majority of people."

Dr. Shrum said the final commission report would be placed in the hands of the government sometime between July 15 and Aug. 1.

Statements Bad—True or Untrue

A senior B.C. Electric official suggested to the Shrum royal commission yesterday that B.C. Power Commission employees should not "run around the province" making statements about the B.C. Electric whether they are true or untrue.

A. Bruce Robertson, chief counsel for the company, said: "If anything can lead to poor relationships between two utilities, it is to have officials of one making statements to important or unimportant groups about the other utility."

"It's bad enough if the statements are correct—it's worse when they are erroneous."

Mr. Robertson's remarks on the last day of the royal commission hearings were aimed at former general manager H. Lee Briggs and C. W. Nash, head of the power commission rate division.

Crow Question Neatly Shifted

City parks committee passed the letter to the health department, said parks administrator W. H. Warren.

"That's the obvious place," said city manager C. C. Wyatt, and the aldermen agreed.
